Americans-Europeans Negotiate For Peace

BRUSSELS (AP) — American and European negotiators next week begin three efforts toward peace, disarmament and economic stability in Europe.

The foreign ministers of the Common Market start an attempt in the Hague Monday to reach an agreement on security and economic affairs.

Tuesday in Geneva, U. S. and Soviet representatives begin the second phase of their Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, which are expected to deal with the question of nuclear weapons based in West Germany and capable of striking the Soviet Union.

Potentially the most far-reaching talks, however, begin Wednesday in Helsinki. Representatives of the United States, Canada and 32 European nations, including the Soviet Union, will start the most inclusive talks since World War II to decide if enough common ground exists to make a proposed conference on security and cooperation in Europe worth holding.

Only Albania, Communist China's ally in Europe, has refused to attend, but tiny Liechtenstein - population 20,000 - and the Vatican will be participating.

A major dispute is expected over what security questions should be discussed. The American and European allies - including France - agreed last May that "certain military measures, aimed at strengthening confidence and increasing stability, would contribute to the process of reducing military confronation."

The U. S. government would like to see such "confidence - building measures" as mutual notification by East and West of major troop movements and the exchange of invitations to big maneuvers. It has considerable support from West Germany, which made similar proposals in the 1960's, and from others.

For News Sources

Protection Urged

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)— The Associated Press Managing Editor's Association has urged enactment of federal and state laws to protect the confidentiality of reporters' news sources.

The call came in a resolution adopted shortly before the association concluded its 39th annual convention here Friday.

The resolution commends Los Angeles reporter William Farr for his "courageous stand" in facing a jail sentence rather than agreeing to answer a judge's questions about a story Farr wrote for the Los Angeles Herald—Examiner in 1970.

Farr was jailed for a few hours Thursday before being freed by an appeals court pending its ruling on a petition seeking a writ for his release.

In other business Friday, the APME presented two awards and installed new officers.

The Evening Journal, Wilmington De., was named winner of the association's second annual public- service award.

Knight Newspapers and Knight reporters Robert Boyd and Clark Hoyt received a special award for "their adherence to the highest standards of American journalism" in connection with information relating to the medical history of Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D—Mo.

The Wilmington newspaper was cited for identifying by name heroin pushers in that city, risking libel suits in doing so.

Kinght Newspapers and Boyd and Hoyt were honored for unearthing "important information" about the medical history of Eagleton when he was the Democratic vice presidential candidate.

A resolution in connection with the award also states that "their sense of decency and ethical responsibility dictated that the subject of their story be given the opportunity to comment on the information... that sense of responsibility resulted, in subsequent events, in the loss of a major exclusive story."

Wendel C. Phillippi of the Indianapolis News, outgoing APME president, said the honor took the form of a special award because recipients did not qualify for a public- service award under award rules.

Installed as president succeeding Phillippi was John C. Quinn of the Gannett Newspaper, Rochester, N.Y.

Other new officers: Richard D. Smyser, of the Oak Ridge Tenn. Oak Ridger, vice president: Robert P. Clark, Courier Journal and Louisville Times, Louisville, Ky., secretary, and George R. Burg, Kansas City Star, treasurer.

Japan Requests Terrorist Info

UNITED NATIONS (AP)— Japan has called for an international exchange of information on terrorists as one means of curbing their acts.

Japanese Ambassador Toru Nakagawa made the informal proposal Friday night in the General Assembly's legal committee, which is debating measures to take against international terrorism.

Nakagawa said the first point in tackling the problem should be for U.M. members to adopt "effective domestic measures..."

He said governments also should adhere to existing treaties to deal with hijacking and other acts endangering air travel, the assembly should condemn international terrorism and it should set machinery in motion to work out ways to suppress such terrorism.

Nakagawa said a proposed treaty for that purpose drawn up by the United States "requires our close scrutiny." But he stated no preference as to whether "a new committee or a body already in existence" should undertake such tasks.

Earlier, Soviet legal expert Dmitri N. Kolesnik said the assembly should ask the International Law Commission to draw up a convention to prevent international terrorism, tackling that job before anything else. The commission, a U.N. body of 25 jurists, meets in Geneva next May 7- July 13.

Nixon-Kissinger Talk Before Negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon broke up a weeklong stay at Camp David, Md., today by returning to Washington to confer with Henry A. Kissinger on final negotiating positions for Kissinger's talks in Paris with North Vietnamese negotiator Le Duc Tho.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the President had not scheduled a White House meeting with Kissinger. Rather, Ziegler said, the two would be conferring by telephone there.

The President returned to the White House for what Ziegler said would be an overnight stay to work on a number of matters, including "developing and dictating the final instructions for the SALT (Strategic Arms Limitation Talks) negotiations which begin Nov. 21," in Geneva.

The President is expected to return to Camp David Sunday, probably after Kissinger's scheduled 10 a.m. departure from Andrews Air Force Base for the Paris talks.

Nixon relaxed Friday night at Camp David with a birthday dinner celebration for his close friend C. B. "Bebe" Rebozo of Key Biscayne, Fla. Others on hand for the dinner included Mrs. Nixon and Robert Abplanalp of Bronxville, N.Y., another friend of the President.

Ziegler said Thanskgiving plans for the First Family are still uncertain except that they would still be in the

Peron May Address Mass Rally Tonight

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Former dictator Juan D. Peron, back in Argentina after 17 years of exile, received permission early today to address his followers at a mass rally that could be held tonight.

The ruling military junta that granted Peron's request also said he and his third wife, Isabel, could move from the airport hotel where they spent the night to a $96,000 suburban villa purchased for them last month by loyal Peronists.

Seven motorcycle police sped ahead, and police cars were on both sides of the Peron vehicle as it left the airport for the 30-minute drive to the house in Vincente Lopez. Trailing the Perons were a busload of police and more than 25 carloads of Peronists who had started a chant of "Peron, Peron, Peron" as the 77-year- old former president emerged from the hotel.

Peron's biggest victory, however, was the junta's approval for the rally.

Peron had protested the massive security measures covering his arrival Friday at Ezeiza International Airport, including an order that limited the welcoming delegation to 300.

Peronist leaders had predicted more than a million persons would go to the airport 30 miles west of

The staff has been increased to 12 with the hiring of three new tellers. Two employes will remain in the downtown branch with Mrs. Lena Wood as office manager.

Besides the two Sikeston offices, Security Federal has three other branches in Dexter, Malden and New Madrid. The downtown office in Sikeston is located at 124 East Center St.

The occupants of the plane were all believed to have been from Richmond, and the Richmond Daily Register said two of its staff members were believed to have been aboard.

State police said the plane refueled at Hopkinsville's Memorial Airfield before departing.

The plane crashed at about midnight on the farm of Mrs. Richard Simons between Allegre and Britmart, about nine miles north of Elkton.

Trio Held For Armed Robbery Investigation

CHARLESTON-- Thomas Gant of Wyatt, Eddie Lee Butler and Walter Burnett, both of Charleston, are being held in the Mississippi County jail for investigation of armed robbery, according to deputy sheriff Mike Baughman.

The three men are suspected of robbing the Fina Oil Co. near Wyatt on Nov. 14. About $50 in company money and a billfold of station attendant Vance Aldrige Jr. were taken. Aldridge was hit on the head during the robbery and was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

Charleston police officers Ben Stampley and Willie Jarrett made the arrest about 7 p.m. Friday in Charleston.

Pair Hold Up Friendly Motel

DEXTER — Two armed men held up the Friendly Motel on highway 60 in Dexter about 8 p.m. Friday.

The men took $52 from owner Merle Bledsoe of Dexter. They were described as two white males in their middle 20's. One reportedly wore a white stocking over his head.

The men were seen driving west in a blue Pontiac after the robbery.

Firemen Called

CHARLESTON — Firemen were called at 1 p.m. Friday to the R. C. Davis Cotton and Grain Co. in Charleston to extinguish a fire in a grain dryer. Damage was confined to the dryer where trash from beans had ignited.

FILM AT THE KENNEDY CENTER

Theater, music and dance, those staples of both high - and middle- brow culture, have all found a home at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C. And now a peculiarly American art form, the motion picture, soon will take up residence there. The American Film Institute, a nonprofit corporation founded five and one-half years ago, will begin Sunday afternoon and evenings screenings of outstanding movies in the center's Eisenhower Theater on Sunday, Nov. 19.

AFI's stay in the Eisenhower Theater will be of relatively short duration. It hopes to move into its own 224- seat theater in the center early in 1973. Jack L. Warner, one of the co-founders of Warners Bros. Pictures, has donated $250,000 to help complete construction. When the theater opens, AFI plans daytime showings of special short films for Kennedy Center visitors, children's programs in the afternoon, and a "cinematheque" repertory of classic and contemporary films from around the world every night.

One of AFI's principal goals is "to preserve, catalogue and provide for increased accessibility of outstanding American films." Accordingly, it allocated $1.2 million, nearly one-fourth of its initial budget, for the conservation of American's film heritage. The intended repository was The Library of Congress' National Film Collection.

Although the Library of Congress is America's largest film archive, with around 25,000 titles, it had, until AFI came along, a serious gap. The gap resulted from the fact that only 30 feature films were deposited as evidence of copyright between 1912 and 1942. To dramatize the situation, AFI and a panel of film historians drew up an initial rescue list of 250 important American films believed to be lost or in danger of being lost because good 35 mm copies of them were not known to exist in any archive. Around 75 per cent of those films have since been located. They will form part of AFI's repertory as it prepares to install a national art in the national cultural center.

WARD NABS
THE SHOPLIFTERS

Trade sources estimate that shoplifters steal three billion dollars worth of merchandise a year from American retailers. Since this loss is passed on to the consumer in the form of higher prices, the public is actually subsidizing this kind of crime.

At least one chain is actively fighting the problem, however. In contrast to the average 15 per cent inventory loss reported by the retail industry - which includes breakage and employe pilferage as well as shoplifting — Montgomery Ward shows a total loss of only 3/10th of one per cent.

The reason, according to a new book, "Satisfaction Guaranteed: An Unconventional Report to Consumer," by Booton Herndon, is found in the company's simply stated policy: Report all instances of crime to the proper prosecuting authorities.

In its all-out war against shoplifting, the company apprehended 22,533 suspected shoplifters in 1969, 29,590 in 1970 and 29,055 in 1971.

Although some cases could not be prosecuted because of legal technicalities, not one was dropped because of outside pressure or fear of publicity. (In one case, the shoplifter was the wife of the president of the local Chamber of Commerce.)

"We don't fear unpleasant publicity," says Harry E. Stirmell, chief of Ward's protection service, "because we don't think it is unpleasant. We think that prosecuting criminals is a real public duty, and that no honest person will stop trading with us because of it."

INDUSTRY SPOKESMAN SAYS NEW CONSUMER BILL FAULTY

Passage of the proposed 1971 Consumer Protection Act would virtually "Federalize" the so-called consumer movement and be detrimental to both industry and the consumer, according to John A. Stuart, director of marketing activities for the National Association of Manufacturers.

The proposed law would establish an independent consumer protection agency, an office of consumer affairs in the executive office of the President, and a consumer advisory council. In testimony before a subcommittee of the House Committee on Government Operations, Mr. Stuart warned that the act could ''overwhelm the marketplace with political decisions.''

Instead, he said the NAM advocates more adequate budgets and greater powers of enforcement for existing agencies including the Federal Trade Commission; mandatory federal standards regarding the safety of consumer products; more coordination among the federal government's hundreds of consumer protection programs; government-encouraged advisory groups of consumers and businessmen which would seek to reach voluntary agreements, and a program of consumer education and counseling.

Mr. Stuart said that the proposed consumer protection agency and bureaus would inevitably "be torn by differences in values and subjective judgments and be no better able to reconcile the true public interest and the true consumer interest than Congress itself or any group of men."

"The legislation seeks to institutionalize, within the federal establishment, 'the consumer movement' — a strictly voluntary movement on the American scene," he said. "Once created, with all the money, manpower, and legal force of the federal government behind it, the agency will be a system for the public monitoring, evaluating, and inevitably directly controlling of various values of the products and services of the economy."

HONESTY IN ADS...
A NEW TREND

If the Federal Trade Commission and certain consumer groups have their way, advertising will not only be absolutely honest in the future, it will be honest retroactively.

A proposed order against Coca Cola would prohibit the company from making any nutrient claims for any product for one year, unless the claims were accompanied by a "Clear and conspicuous" disclosure of alleged previous deceptive advertising in connection with its Hi-C fruit drink.

Such disclosures would have to constitute at least 25 per cent of total print advertising and 25 per cent of total broadcasting time.

Another order would require that Chevron gasoline publicly "repent" for a year for allegedly falsely claiming that an additive to its gasoline reduced air pollution.

Similar proposed orders have been filed against DuPont for a TV commercial demonstrating how Zerex antifreeze stopped leaks, and against Wonder Bread for nutritive claims.

Thus in place of the traditional capitalist slogan of "caveat emptor"—let the buyer beware—we seem to be moving toward one which the other leading system has made famous: "mea culpa"—I am guilty.

Or if you want to get commercial about it," "my sin."

PUNISHING THE

Is the day approaching when we will be governed by the decisions of panels of experts rather than laws? With increasing frequency, boards and commissions made up of supposed "experts" are issuing what amount to edicts involving everything from prescription drugs to gun controls. For example, the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence has concluded that the best way to control crime is to take handguns away from millions of law-abiding citizens. There is little doubt but that the Commission's report will be used as a basis for legislative proposals that if enacted would alter basically the rights and responsibilities of the citizens in the matter of gun ownership. It seems to mean that where existing authority fails in the task of administering existing laws, police state controls will be imposed to cover up failure.

There are laws dealing with crime and criminals. These laws should be strengthened and enforced. As "The Ameican Rifleman'' points out editorially: "While the anti-gun element chased after guns in the empty name of crime control, lawbreakers scrambled after loot and preyed on decent citizens with increasing success and little fear of punishment. From 1961 thru 1966...crime increased 61 per cent while the number of criminals in jail decreased almost 10 per cent... More and more Americans appear to be accepting the clear logic of punishing criminals, not guns. Yet on virtually every test vote on this policy, in Congress or in State Legislatures, the lawmakers who call loudest for gun control usually have voted against mandatory penalty bills..."

The rising crime problem will never be cured by punishing the innocent through oppressive and confiscatory gun control laws.

DECENTRALIZATION
OF MANPOWER
TRAINING URGED

Manpower training programs financed with Federal funds should be administered under state and local authority, the National Association of Manufacturers said in a recent statement filed with the Select Subcommittee on Labor of the House Committee on Education and Labor.

The NAM said decentralization should be the prime objective in the reorganization of the maze of overlapping government programs.

Progressive increases in Federal support funds to a state based on a three-step program were suggested: First the developing of a comprehensive state manpower plan; second, the development of a state manpower agency to administer the plan; and third, regularized evaluation of the plan to meet changing conditions and needs on the part of the state.

Emphasizing that the states and local communities are best equipped to analyze and solve their manpower probems, the NAM said that many manpower training activities have been ineffective because of Washington controls and the confusing multiplicity of programs.

The Association said reorganization should eliminate duplication and piecemeal approaches and also should help reduce costs. It pointed out that Federal manpower training program expenditures were $3.1 billion last year and that the figures are $4.3 billion for 1972 and $5.1 billion for 1973.

The NAM said reorganization also should end competition among the various federal agencies engaged in manpower training.

TIGHTENING THE IRON CURTAIN

So many people have attempted escape from the East German ''workers' paradise'' that the communists are taking drastic new steps to keep their people from freedom.

The East Germans are erecting nine- foot- high concrete pillars overlaid with heavy screen along the 850-mile West German border. Explosive devices are attached to the pillars, set to go off if anyone climbs the fence.

New concrete guardhouses, 45 feet high, have been built, with machine guns and powerful searchlights. About 500 yards behind the main fence, an electrically charged fence has been erected. If anyone touches it, an alarm is set off. An anti- vehicle trench with three- foot- high concrete slabs prevents cars and trucks from crashing through.

In areas of the border difficult to guard, such as gullies and woods, the communists have tied wild dogs with 50- yard cables. The dogs are trained to attack anyone who tries to get through. NATO officials have evidence that several East Germans have been attacked and killed by these dogs in recent weeks.

As one NATO official put it: "The use of wild dogs is one of the most barbaric methods of security in the world today. It is hard to believe that any civilized nation would use this method of security to keep their own citizens from seeking freedom."

Yet according to columnist Paul Scott, the White House has blocked release of photos showing the animals, claiming that this would endanger East—West relations. Apparently, friendship with communists is more important to our government than freedom for East Germans. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Scooping McGovern:
Powerful Labor Leaders Boom
Humphrey For Democratic Party's New National Chairman
By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON-- It is a fact that President Nixon still would welcome Democratic Sen. Henry "Scoop" Jackson into his Cabinet. This reflects virtually as high a source as there is in this capital.

Flattered though he is, the Senator from the state of Washington wants to stay actively in his party and rid it of McGovernism, hush what he calls the loudest voices which alienate the electorate, speed Jean Westwood back to obscurity-- and with his closest ally, the labor movement, return it to the liberal- labor alliance of 1968.

He has one powerful, well-financed ally, the fullbackish AFL— CIO Chief, George Meany, whom George McGovern has dubbed a party "wrecker." The description was returned by labor's headquarters with a riposte about ''Gravel Gertie'' Westwood.

The party is getting rough. The word from "15th Street," meaning labor headquarters, is that "Westwood must go-- she is the symbol of the forces which quite brutally read us out of the party at the Democratic National Convention. Their party quota system stinks."

So, the AFL— CIO president is in his 8th floor inner sanctum receiving calls from successful Senators and Representatives whom labor backed during the campaign. He, working with Texas's Robert Strauss, former National Committee treasurer, whom the labor strategists consider a "nuts and bolts" political activist, raised large sums of money for the Democratic Congressional candidates.

Strauss would be highly acceptable to labor as a new Democratic national chairman-- if Scoop Jackson doesn't want it. Few realize that Jackson still has considerable Kennedy family contacts; that Bobby Kennedy, at the party's '60 Los Angeles convention, wanted Scoop for vice president instead of Lyndon Johnson; and that just before the LBJ choice was made public, Jack Kennedy personally telephoned Jackson to tell him and say that the Kennedys wanted him to accept the party's national committee chairmanship.

Jackson took it for a short while.

But today it appears Jackson seeks to be the conciliator-- not with the McGovern activists but with most other forces in the party. Thus a boom has started to put Sen. Hubert Humphrey in the party's top chair. This is reflected in the sentiments of "regular" leaders such as Frank Rossetti, a national vice president of the Plasterers Union who also is leader of New York County, known as Tammany Hall.

"HHH is moderate," says Rosetti. "He's been around. He can talk to all people. He has contacts in precincts and counties made during his campaigns for the Vice Presidency and Presidency. He can do more and get around more. He can bring back both the professionals and the working people."

Hubert would be acceptable to Meany and labor's political director Al Barkan, also considered a "wrecker" by McGovern. There have been reports that Meany has called Humphrey a "mushhead." They're wrong. The reports have been confused with references made in labor headquarters to Sen. Muskie as "Mushkie."

Fact is Humphrey, Jackson, Meany, Barkan, AFL— CIO lobbyist Andy Biemiller, and the low- visibility, heavy- set, fortyish political operative Bob Keith are now building a neo-Americans for Democratic Action type of organization called Coalition for a Democratic Majority.

This is the new united front-- but without McGovern, Westwood and company. Especially without the Dakotan's trusted organizer Rick Stearn, whom Westwood would name to run the party's Charter Commission. This group will restructure the Democratic party with a set of recommendations scheduled for 1974.

Labor's objections to Stearn are bitter. Not the least of the anger springs from a 1967 statement, sympathetic to the Arabs, signed by Stearn when he was international affairs vice president of the U.S. National Student Assn.

It is this neo- isolationist new politics which turned Meany and his powerful political colleagues off to McGovern. "We were ticked off," says one of Meany's inner circle. "Not just by McGovern but by the operation itself...It quite brutally read us out and took no heed of what we said privately or publicly. Westwood is symbolic of the new McGovern quota system. Look at Iowa's Democratic convention delegation and how it was created.

"They caucused endlessly, until 3 a.m., in precincts, wards and counties. The McGovern forces spent hours discussing marriages between homosexuals, amnesty and legalization of marijuana. Our people couldn't stay. They work for a living. Farmers couldn't stay. They rise a few hours after those sessions broke up. Senior citizens just couldn't take the strain. But the kids could, the wealthy could, the housewives. So Iowa had not a single senior citizen in its delegation though they make up 22 per cent of the state's population.

The same point is made of New York's massive delegation-- "They had six professed homosexuals, three unionists...out of 278 delegates." And in California: "53 college students; 18 white-collared miscellaneous; 45 managerial representatives plus college professors, 37 teachers; 35 persons from the poverty program; 29 political office holders... and 9 trade unionists."

Oregon had no labor men.

So labor called it a convention of the elite. "There were no bricklayers, no iron workers, and, worst of all, no plumbers," said Meany, who used to be able to handle a pipe himself.

Thus labor, having just completed its homework, plans some remedial reading-- in order to read McGovern, et al., right out of the party.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON-- No general likes to see his fighting outfit disappear, least of all on paper. So, when the Army inactivated the 9th Infantry Division in 1970 Maj. Gen. Ira ''Big Jim'' Hunt was determined to immortalize it.

He formed a fraternity of 9th Division veterans who had fought with him in Vietnam. He demanded a roster be compiled of the men who had served under him, that they be solicited for membership, that dues be collected and, finally, that a grand, two- volume history of the division be written for its members.

Two years later, Hunt's pet project is riddled with scandal. Our persistent inquiries into the activities of Hunt's 9th Division Association, more formally known as the Octofoil Association, has tied up a half-dozen brass hats, triggered a major inspector general investigation and even kindled the interest of the FBI.

In his new command at Ft. Belvoir, Va., Hunt seemed more devoted to the memory of the 9th Division than to the engineer school he was supposed to be running. He recruited his former information chief in Vietnam, Maj. Tommie B. King, who turned Ft. Belvoir's information offices into a museum of 9th Division memorabilia.

When Hunt was transferred to Continental Army Command headquarters at Ft. Monroe, Va., King remained behind and devoted himself to fulfilling Hunt's dream. Over the last two years, King used military equipment, franking privileges and government personnel to work on Octofoil Association projects.

He founded "Engineer" magazine and used it as a cover for his 9th Division activities. For example, he detailed Capt. Dennis Pierman and Lt. Tom Lewis to research and write the division's history. Pierman spent more than a year working on the project in the offices of ''Engineer'' magazine.

--Academic Pursuit--

When we questioned Pierman about the legality of writing a private history for the association on the taxpayers' time, he replied: "That was a secondary consideration. For me, it was an academic pursuit."

King recruited "Engineer's" art director, John Savage, to design a letterhead, membership card and several flyers for the Octofoil Association. King also asked Savage to lay out the 9th Division history once it was completed.

For his work, Savage was promised a three- week vacation in Japan, but the trip was later scrapped. Although the association was supposed to pick up the tab for the trip, Savage acknowledged to us: ''Major King didn't care whether I did the work on government time."

King also used a government mimeograph machine to run off the association's material, sent out at least two mass mailings to association members in government envelopes and recruited enlisted men to help with the mailings.

King's secretaries spent much of their time typing 9th Division material, including the history, at the taxpayers' expense. One master sergeant became so upset that he kept a daily log of the hours King's secretaries spent on association business.

Promoting the Octofoil Association kept King so busy that he fell behind in some college courses he was taking at American University in Washington, D.C. So he recruited Capt. Tom Trivan to help "correct and rewrite several of King's term papers," Trivan told us. One of King's secretaries typed up the papers.

King, through a spokesman, told us that ''to his knowledge'' all mailing costs were defrayed by the association.

Footnote: Last May, a year and a half after it was inactivated, the 9th Infantry Division was revived and now is stationed in Ft. Lewis, Washington.

--God Bless Mrs. Merica--

Last month, we told the story of Mrs. Harry Merica, a spunky mountain woman who had to give up her two disabled children-- Harry, 10, and Joe, 8,-- because the government had neglected to build an adequate bridge linking her home to the outside world.

She lives near Naked Creek, Va., which was battered and flooded last summer by Hurricane Agnes. The damage forced Mrs. Merica to carry her two boys on her back across a small, makeshift footbridge upstream so that the children could catch the local school bus on highway 609.

Virginia officials told Mrs. Merica that the daily trek was too dangerous and that her children were too ill to remain at home. A court order was issued, making her children wards of the state.

Since our story appeared, we have learned that the Federal Highway Administration has parcelled out $2,700 in emergency funds to build a safe footbridge linking Naked Creek to highway 609. State officials have also agreed to review with Mrs. Merica the original court order which took away Mrs. Merica's children.

But what Mrs. Merica and her neighbors really need is a concrete highway bridge. This still remains in doubt because of one man, Roy W. Komer, chairman of the Page County Board of Supervisors.

He steadfastly refuses to use his powers to obtain right of access so that the highway bridge can be built. A mild-mannered man, Komer fears setting a precedent.

The gap resulted from the fact that only 30 feature films were deposited as evidence of copyright between 1912 and 1942. To dramatize the situation, AFI and a panel of film historians drew up an initial rescue list of 250 important American films believed to be lost or in danger of being lost because good 35 mm copies of them were not known to exist in any archive. Around 75 per cent of those films have since been located. They will form part of AFI's repertory as it prepares to install a national art in the national cultural center.

WARD NABS
THE SHOPLIFTERS

Trade sources estimate that shoplifters steal three billion dollars worth of merchandise a year from American retailers. Since this loss is passed on to the consumer in the form of higher prices, the public is actually subsidizing this kind of crime.

At least one chain is actively fighting the problem, however. In contrast to the average 15 per cent inventory loss reported by the retail industry - which includes breakage and employe pilferage as well as shoplifting — Montgomery Ward shows a total loss of only 3/10th of one per cent.

The reason, according to a new book, "Satisfaction Guaranteed: An Unconventional Report to Consumer," by Booton Herndon, is found in the company's simply stated policy: Report all instances of crime to the proper prosecuting authorities.

In its all-out war against shoplifting, the company apprehended 22,533 suspected shoplifters in 1969, 29,590 in 1970 and 29,055 in 1971.

Although some cases could not be prosecuted because of legal technicalities, not one was dropped because of outside pressure or fear of publicity. (In one case, the shoplifter was the wife of the president of the local Chamber of Commerce.)

"We don't fear unpleasant publicity," says Harry E. Stirmell, chief of Ward's protection service, "because we don't think it is unpleasant. We think that prosecuting criminals is a real public duty, and that no honest person will stop trading with us because of it."

INDUSTRY SPOKESMAN SAYS NEW CONSUMER BILL FAULTY

Passage of the proposed 1971 Consumer Protection Act would virtually "Federalize" the so-called consumer movement and be detrimental to both industry and the consumer, according to John A. Stuart, director of marketing activities for the National Association of Manufacturers.

The proposed law would establish an independent consumer protection agency, an office of consumer affairs in the executive office of the President, and a consumer advisory council. In testimony before a subcommittee of the House Committee on Government Operations, Mr. Stuart warned that the act could ''overwhelm the marketplace with political decisions.''

Instead, he said the NAM advocates more adequate budgets and greater powers of enforcement for existing agencies including the Federal Trade Commission; mandatory federal standards regarding the safety of consumer products; more coordination among the federal government's hundreds of consumer protection programs; government-encouraged advisory groups of consumers and businessmen which would seek to reach voluntary agreements, and a program of consumer education and counseling.

Mr. Stuart said that the proposed consumer protection agency and bureaus would inevitably "be torn by differences in values and subjective judgments and be no better able to reconcile the true public interest and the true consumer interest than Congress itself or any group of men."

"The legislation seeks to institutionalize, within the federal establishment, 'the consumer movement' — a strictly voluntary movement on the American scene," he said. "Once created, with all the money, manpower, and legal force of the federal government behind it, the agency will be a system for the public monitoring, evaluating, and inevitably directly controlling of various values of the products and services of the economy."

HONESTY IN ADS...
A NEW TREND

If the Federal Trade Commission and certain consumer groups have their way, advertising will not only be absolutely honest in the future, it will be honest retroactively.

A proposed order against Coca Cola would prohibit the company from making any nutrient claims for any product for one year, unless the claims were accompanied by a "Clear and conspicuous" disclosure of alleged previous deceptive advertising in connection with its Hi-C fruit drink.

Such disclosures would have to constitute at least 25 per cent of total print advertising and 25 per cent of total broadcasting time.

Another order would require that Chevron gasoline publicly "repent" for a year for allegedly falsely claiming that an additive to its gasoline reduced air pollution.

Similar proposed orders have been filed against DuPont for a TV commercial demonstrating how Zerex antifreeze stopped leaks, and against Wonder Bread for nutritive claims.

Or if you want to get commercial about it," "my sin."

PUNISHING THE

Is the day approaching when we will be governed by the decisions of panels of experts rather than laws? With increasing frequency, boards and commissions made up of supposed "experts" are issuing what amount to edicts involving everything from prescription drugs to gun controls. For example, the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence has concluded that the best way to control crime is to take handguns away from millions of law-abiding citizens. There is little doubt but that the Commission's report will be used as a basis for legislative proposals that if enacted would alter basically the rights and responsibilities of the citizens in the matter of gun ownership. It seems to mean that where existing authority fails in the task of administering existing laws, police state controls will be imposed to cover up failure.

There are laws dealing with crime and criminals. These laws should be strengthened and enforced. As "The Ameican Rifleman'' points out editorially: "While the anti-gun element chased after guns in the empty name of crime control, lawbreakers scrambled after loot and preyed on decent citizens with increasing success and little fear of punishment. From 1961 thru 1966...crime increased 61 per cent while the number of criminals in jail decreased almost 10 per cent... More and more Americans appear to be accepting the clear logic of punishing criminals, not guns. Yet on virtually every test vote on this policy, in Congress or in State Legislatures, the lawmakers who call loudest for gun control usually have voted against mandatory penalty bills..."

The rising crime problem will never be cured by punishing the innocent through oppressive and confiscatory gun control laws.

DECENTRALIZATION
TRAINING URGED

Manpower training programs financed with Federal funds should be administered under state and local authority, the National Association of Manufacturers said in a recent statement filed with the Select Subcommittee on Labor of the House Committee on Education and Labor.

The NAM said decentralization should be the prime objective in the reorganization of the maze of overlapping government programs.

Progressive increases in Federal support funds to a state based on a three-step program were suggested: First the developing of a comprehensive state manpower plan; second, the development of a state manpower agency to administer the plan; and third, regularized evaluation of the plan to meet changing conditions and needs on the part of the state.

Emphasizing that the states and local communities are best equipped to analyze and solve their manpower probems, the NAM said that many manpower training activities have been ineffective because of Washington controls and the confusing multiplicity of programs.

The Association said reorganization should eliminate duplication and piecemeal approaches and also should help reduce costs. It pointed out that Federal manpower training program expenditures were $3.1 billion last year and that the figures are $4.3 billion for 1972 and $5.1 billion for 1973.

The NAM said reorganization also should end competition among the various federal agencies engaged in manpower training.

TIGHTENING THE IRON CURTAIN

So many people have attempted escape from the East German ''workers' paradise'' that the communists are taking drastic new steps to keep their people from freedom.

The East Germans are erecting nine- foot- high concrete pillars overlaid with heavy screen along the 850-mile West German border. Explosive devices are attached to the pillars, set to go off if anyone climbs the fence.

New concrete guardhouses, 45 feet high, have been built, with machine guns and powerful searchlights. About 500 yards behind the main fence, an electrically charged fence has been erected. If anyone touches it, an alarm is set off. An anti- vehicle trench with three- foot- high concrete slabs prevents cars and trucks from crashing through.

In areas of the border difficult to guard, such as gullies and woods, the communists have tied wild dogs with 50- yard cables. The dogs are trained to attack anyone who tries to get through. NATO officials have evidence that several East Germans have been attacked and killed by these dogs in recent weeks.

As one NATO official put it: "The use of wild dogs is one of the most barbaric methods of security in the world today. It is hard to believe that any civilized nation would use this method of security to keep their own citizens from seeking freedom."

Yet according to columnist Paul Scott, the White House has blocked release of photos showing the animals, claiming that this would endanger East—West relations. Apparently, friendship with communists is more important to our government than freedom for East Germans. HLH

By Victor Riesel

Scooping McGovern:
Powerful Labor Leaders Boom
Humphrey For Democratic Party's New National Chairman
By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON-- It is a fact that President Nixon still would welcome Democratic Sen. Henry "Scoop" Jackson into his Cabinet. This reflects virtually as high a source as there is in this capital.

Flattered though he is, the Senator from the state of Washington wants to stay actively in his party and rid it of McGovernism, hush what he calls the loudest voices which alienate the electorate, speed Jean Westwood back to obscurity-- and with his closest ally, the labor movement, return it to the liberal- labor alliance of 1968.

He has one powerful, well-financed ally, the fullbackish AFL— CIO Chief, George Meany, whom George McGovern has dubbed a party "wrecker." The description was returned by labor's headquarters with a riposte about ''Gravel Gertie'' Westwood.

The party is getting rough. The word from "15th Street," meaning labor headquarters, is that "Westwood must go-- she is the symbol of the forces which quite brutally read us out of the party at the Democratic National Convention. Their party quota system stinks."

So, the AFL— CIO president is in his 8th floor inner sanctum receiving calls from successful Senators and Representatives whom labor backed during the campaign. He, working with Texas's Robert Strauss, former National Committee treasurer, whom the labor strategists consider a "nuts and bolts" political activist, raised large sums of money for the Democratic Congressional candidates.

Strauss would be highly acceptable to labor as a new Democratic national chairman-- if Scoop Jackson doesn't want it. Few realize that Jackson still has considerable Kennedy family contacts; that Bobby Kennedy, at the party's '60 Los Angeles convention, wanted Scoop for vice president instead of Lyndon Johnson; and that just before the LBJ choice was made public, Jack Kennedy personally telephoned Jackson to tell him and say that the Kennedys wanted him to accept the party's national committee chairmanship.

Jackson took it for a short while.

But today it appears Jackson seeks to be the conciliator-- not with the McGovern activists but with most other forces in the party. Thus a boom has started to put Sen. Hubert Humphrey in the party's top chair. This is reflected in the sentiments of "regular" leaders such as Frank Rossetti, a national vice president of the Plasterers Union who also is leader of New York County, known as Tammany Hall.

"HHH is moderate," says Rosetti. "He's been around. He can talk to all people. He has contacts in precincts and counties made during his campaigns for the Vice Presidency and Presidency. He can do more and get around more. He can bring back both the professionals and the working people."

Hubert would be acceptable to Meany and labor's political director Al Barkan, also considered a "wrecker" by McGovern. There have been reports that Meany has called Humphrey a "mushhead." They're wrong. The reports have been confused with references made in labor headquarters to Sen. Muskie as "Mushkie."

Fact is Humphrey, Jackson, Meany, Barkan, AFL— CIO lobbyist Andy Biemiller, and the low- visibility, heavy- set, fortyish political operative Bob Keith are now building a neo-Americans for Democratic Action type of organization called Coalition for a Democratic Majority.

This is the new united front-- but without McGovern, Westwood and company. Especially without the Dakotan's trusted organizer Rick Stearn, whom Westwood would name to run the party's Charter Commission. This group will restructure the Democratic party with a set of recommendations scheduled for 1974.

Labor's objections to Stearn are bitter. Not the least of the anger springs from a 1967 statement, sympathetic to the Arabs, signed by Stearn when he was international affairs vice president of the U.S. National Student Assn.

It is this neo- isolationist new politics which turned Meany and his powerful political colleagues off to McGovern. "We were ticked off," says one of Meany's inner circle. "Not just by McGovern but by the operation itself...It quite brutally read us out and took no heed of what we said privately or publicly. Westwood is symbolic of the new McGovern quota system. Look at Iowa's Democratic convention delegation and how it was created.

"They caucused endlessly, until 3 a.m., in precincts, wards and counties. The McGovern forces spent hours discussing marriages between homosexuals, amnesty and legalization of marijuana. Our people couldn't stay. They work for a living. Farmers couldn't stay. They rise a few hours after those sessions broke up. Senior citizens just couldn't take the strain. But the kids could, the wealthy could, the housewives. So Iowa had not a single senior citizen in its delegation though they make up 22 per cent of the state's population.

The same point is made of New York's massive delegation-- "They had six professed homosexuals, three unionists...out of 278 delegates." And in California: "53 college students; 18 white-collared miscellaneous; 45 managerial representatives plus college professors, 37 teachers; 35 persons from the poverty program; 29 political office holders... and 9 trade unionists."

Oregon had no labor men.

So labor called it a convention of the elite. "There were no bricklayers, no iron workers, and, worst of all, no plumbers," said Meany, who used to be able to handle a pipe himself.

Thus labor, having just completed its homework, plans some remedial reading-- in order to read McGovern, et al., right out of the party.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON-- No general likes to see his fighting outfit disappear, least of all on paper. So, when the Army inactivated the 9th Infantry Division in 1970 Maj. Gen. Ira ''Big Jim'' Hunt was determined to immortalize it.

He formed a fraternity of 9th Division veterans who had fought with him in Vietnam. He demanded a roster be compiled of the men who had served under him, that they be solicited for membership, that dues be collected and, finally, that a grand, two- volume history of the division be written for its members.

Two years later, Hunt's pet project is riddled with scandal. Our persistent inquiries into the activities of Hunt's 9th Division Association, more formally known as the Octofoil Association, has tied up a half-dozen brass hats, triggered a major inspector general investigation and even kindled the interest of the FBI.

In his new command at Ft. Belvoir, Va., Hunt seemed more devoted to the memory of the 9th Division than to the engineer school he was supposed to be running. He recruited his former information chief in Vietnam, Maj. Tommie B. King, who turned Ft. Belvoir's information offices into a museum of 9th Division memorabilia.

When Hunt was transferred to Continental Army Command headquarters at Ft. Monroe, Va., King remained behind and devoted himself to fulfilling Hunt's dream. Over the last two years, King used military equipment, franking privileges and government personnel to work on Octofoil Association projects.

He founded "Engineer" magazine and used it as a cover for his 9th Division activities. For example, he detailed Capt. Dennis Pierman and Lt. Tom Lewis to research and write the division's history. Pierman spent more than a year working on the project in the offices of ''Engineer'' magazine.

--Academic Pursuit--

When we questioned Pierman about the legality of writing a private history for the association on the taxpayers' time, he replied: "That was a secondary consideration. For me, it was an academic pursuit."

King recruited "Engineer's" art director, John Savage, to design a letterhead, membership card and several flyers for the Octofoil Association. King also asked Savage to lay out the 9th Division history once it was completed.

For his work, Savage was promised a three- week vacation in Japan, but the trip was later scrapped. Although the association was supposed to pick up the tab for the trip, Savage acknowledged to us: ''Major King didn't care whether I did the work on government time."

King also used a government mimeograph machine to run off the association's material, sent out at least two mass mailings to association members in government envelopes and recruited enlisted men to help with the mailings.

King's secretaries spent much of their time typing 9th Division material, including the history, at the taxpayers' expense. One master sergeant became so upset that he kept a daily log of the hours King's secretaries spent on association business.

Promoting the Octofoil Association kept King so busy that he fell behind in some college courses he was taking at American University in Washington, D.C. So he recruited Capt. Tom Trivan to help "correct and rewrite several of King's term papers,'' Trivan told us. One of King's secretaries typed up the papers.

King, through a spokesman, told us that ''to his knowledge'' all mailing costs were defrayed by the association.

Footnote: Last May, a year and a half after it was inactivated, the 9th Infantry Division was revived and now is stationed in Ft. Lewis, Washington.

--God Bless Mrs. Merica--

Last month, we told the story of Mrs. Harry Merica, a spunky mountain woman who had to give up her two disabled children-- Harry, 10, and Joe, 8,-- because the government had neglected to build an adequate bridge linking her home to the outside world.

She lives near Naked Creek, Va., which was battered and flooded last summer by Hurricane Agnes. The damage forced Mrs. Merica to carry her two boys on her back across a small, makeshift footbridge upstream so that the children could catch the local school bus on highway 609.

Virginia officials told Mrs. Merica that the daily trek was too dangerous and that her children were too ill to remain at home. A court order was issued, making her children wards of the state.

Since our story appeared, we have learned that the Federal Highway Administration has parcelled out $2,700 in emergency funds to build a safe footbridge linking Naked Creek to highway 609. State officials have also agreed to review with Mrs. Merica the original court order which took away Mrs. Merica's children.

But what Mrs. Merica and her neighbors really need is a concrete highway bridge. This still remains in doubt because of one man, Roy W. Komer, chairman of the Page County Board of Supervisors.

He steadfastly refuses to use his powers to obtain right of access so that the highway bridge can be built. A mild-mannered man, Komer fears setting a precedent.

Heath Convinced Britain Close To Irish Settlement

BELFAST (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath's twoday fact-finding tour of Northern Ireland has convinced him Britain is on the track toward a political settlement and a good opportunity exists for bringing the violence to an end, sources close to him said today.

Heath has been in Northern Ireland only one other time since his election in 1970. That was Dec. 23, when he made a one-day visit to British troops.

This time, he toured the province extensively, meeting politicians, churchmen, business and labor leaders, students and workers to sample public opinion.

His conclusion, announced at a press conference Friday before his departure for London, was that there has been "a great improvement in Northern Ireland" since he was last here.

Government sources here believe Britain is slowly winning the war against terrorism. At the height of the violence earlier this year, there were some 70 bomb explosions a week in the province and 50 British troops killed or wounded. This week, there were about 20 bomb blasts and one soldier was wounded by a sniper.

The Irish Republican Army now admits it is not winning the fight against 20,000 British troops. Its spokesmen say the struggle is shifting to a political one — trying to weaken the bipartisan support in Britain for the army's struggle to keep order here and encouraging eventual withdrawal of British troops.

Contempt Limited For Chicago 7

CHICAGO (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge has set a limit on the contempt- of-court sentences that may be ordered for the Chicago 7 defendants and their lawyers and has dropped entirely contempt charges against Bobby Seale.

The ruling were made Friday by Judge Edward T. Gignoux, who was sent from Portland, Maine, to hear appeals of contempt citations handed down at the end of the conspiracy trial.

The contempt charges stemmed from the actions of the defendants and the lawyers in the courtroom of Judge Julius J. Hoffman, who heard the case relating to disturbances at the time of the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

By limiting contempt sentences to no more than 177 days, Gignoux agreed with a government motion which sought to avoid jury trials on the contempt-charge appeals.

Contempt sentences of more than six months require a jury trial on appeal.

The charges against Seale also were dropped at the government's request. Seale heads the Black Panther party.

An appeals court had ruled that, if Seale were prosecuted for contempt, the government would have to reveal the contents of eavesdropping logs. The government refused, saying such disclosures would "endanger the national security." Five of the defendants in the trial - which began in September 1969 and ended in February 1971 - were convicted on charges that they individually crossed state lines to incite a riot.

Renard C. Davis, Abbott "Abbie" Hoffman, Thomas Hayden, David Dellinger and Jerry C. Rubin were convicted and sentenced to five years in prison and were fined $5,000 each. They are appealing the convictions.

Two other defendants — Lee Weiner and John Froines — were acquitted of all charges.

The seven defendants, who called themselves the Chicago 7, were held in contempt of court with their lawyers, William Kunstler and Leonard Weinglass, at the end of the trial.

Judge Hoffman sentenced them to terms ranging from four years to two and one half months.

Seale's case was severed from those of the others during the trial, because of his frequent violent outbursts in court.

Bound and gagged in Hoffman's courtroom, Seale protested a variety of things, among them claims that Kunstler and Weinglass were incapable of fairly representing him.

Despite the rulings, Morton Stavis, attorney for the Chicago 7 and the lawyers, said he would press for a trial by jury on the contempt appeals.

Two Flyers Rescued As Battlefield Action Drops

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. Air Force rescue team braved heavy antiaircraft fire and overcast skies today to pull two downed American fliers from North Vietnam.

The rescue occurred as ground troops with dogs closed in on the fliers after a 40-hour chase, an Air Force spokesman announced.

The Saigon command said battlefield action dropped to its lowest level in nearly two months, but allied officials said they saw no signs that North Vietnamese units were pulling out of South Vietnam.

Thunderstorms and overcast skies sharply curtailed U.S. air strikes in the southern panhandle of North Vietnam Friday, U.S. sources said.

The two rescued American pilots are Maj. Norbert J. Maier, 36, Avalon, Pa., and Capt. Kenneth D. Thaete, 33, of Wendell, Idaho. They were shot down Thursday night while flying an F105 as bait to draw surface-to-air-missile fire away from B52 bombers, the Air Force said.

The fliers were on a temporary assignment in Thailand from McConnell Air Force Base near Wichita, Kan., when they were downed in a missile duel 15 miles southwest of the port of Thanh Hoa.

"After we hit the ground, there were enemy troops in the area, and we could hear dogs barking," said Thaete. "Occasionally, they (the North Vietnamese) would fire .50-caliber machine guns apparently to get us to move from our hidden positions.

"We were in a valley between two hills, and the enemy set up two .50-caliber machine gun emplacements on top of each of the hills. The adverse weather in the area made rescue difficult, but it also helped us evade the troops looking for us."

Radio Hanoi claimed two more U.S. jets were shot down over North Vietnam Thursday, raising to six the number of planes Hanoi has claimed were shot down this week. The broadcast made no mention of the fate of the crewmen. The U.S. Command only announced the one loss.

The F105 was the 123rd U.S. jet downed over North Vietnam since the resumption of the bombing of the North last April, the U.S. Command said. During the same period, 129 American crewmen have been killed or captured over the North, the command added.

11,725 Fords Are Recalled

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Ford Motor Co. is recalling 11,725 1973-model cars and 31,660 1972 model Econoline vans because of possible defects that could cause the front brakes to go out on the vans and engine fires in the cars.

The Ford and Mercury cars, all equipped with 429-4V engines, are being recalled because about 65 of them are suspected of having a carbureator fuel leakage which could cause fires and delayed starting, a Ford spokesman said Friday.

He said about 2,540 of the vans have improperly installed front-brake hoses which rub against the front suspension coil springs. That contact could cause the hose to rupture, leaving the van without any front brakes.

All repairs will be made at the company's expense, the spokesman added.

German Leaders Vie For Last Minute Votes In Elections

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt and opposition challenger Rainer Barzel were vying for last-minute votes today on the eve of one of the closest run elections in West Germany's 23-year history.

Brandt planned to address two rallies during the day in a sentimental journey to Luebeck, the Baltic seaport where he was born, and West Berlin, where he first rose to prominence as governing mayor in the Cold War years of the early 1960s.

Barzel, the Christian Democratic party leader, was to make a quiet tour of his Paderborn constituency in northern Germany with no official speech-making.

Amid forecasts of an unprecedented 90 per cent or better turnout among 40.8 million eligible voters Sunday, the election still appeared undecided.

Brandt skillfully focused attention this week on his popular, Nobel Prize-winning drive for East-West friendship.

Officially closing his campaign Friday night in the Ruhr industrial city of Essen, he announced he hopes to visit East Berlin "before Christmas" if re-elected so he can sign his historic good-neighbor treaty with East Germany, concluded only last week.

Barzel, personally less popular than Brandt but campaigning hard on economic issues, flayed Brandt's men in two final speeches Friday for failing to halt record consumer price rises — now 6.4 per cent ahead of last year's.

"If it continues like this, inflation will undermine our existence," he told supporters in Karlsruhe.

A total of eight parties have fielded candidates for 496 lower-house seats in the voting.

Three Die In State Traffic

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least three persons have been killed in two separate traffic accidents in Missouri this weekend.

Killed in the collision of a car and a tractor-trailer truck on U.S. 60 highway, about six miles west of Springfield, Friday evening was Virgil Gregory Munden, 17, of Springfield, Mo., the driver of the car. Two passengers in the Munden car were injured and taken to St. John's Hospital, Springfield. The patrol said the truck was making a turn when the car plowed into the rear end of the trailer.

A two-vehicle collision Friday night on Rt. 14 in Christian County near Clever, Mo., took the lives of a 17-year-old driver, Larry Scott Rook, of Springfield, and his 15-year-old sister, Kathy Rook. The patrol said the Rook car failed to stop at a stop sign and ran into the path of a truck driven by John Nelson, 26, of Aurora, Mo. The truck hit the Rook car broadside.

Union Electric Given Increase

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Public Service Commission has given Union Electric Co. of St. Louis permission to increase its rates by about $21 million, described as about $6 million less than the company requested.

The commission said some customers using little electricity will get a decrease of 11 cents a month below present rates, while other with low power demands will get slight increases.

The order will become effective Nov. 28.

The increase is expected to raise company revenues to $263.41 million, with a net operating income of $69.1 million.

The company filed its request March 1, and the commission held hearings in Clayton and Jefferson City during October.

Union Electric serves about 630,000 customers in St. Louis and nine eastern and central Missouri counties.

Forest Service To Buy 40,000 Missouri Acres

WASHINGTON (AP) — A plan of the U.S. Forest Service to buy 40,000 acres of Missouri land over the next 20 years for public use has been announced by Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz.

A "land purchase" unit has been set up by the service, but agency spokesmen said Friday it is not likely enough money will be available to buy large portions of the area in the near future.

One official said "some pieces" may be added next year.

The Forest Service will designate a purchase unit comprising privately owned land near existing national forests. As it becomes available, and as USDA provides the money, the land will be bought by the government and added to the forest area.

Officials said the Missouri purchase unit is roughly within a geographic triangle formed by the communities of Columbia, Fulton and Jefferson City.

It also includes the head waters of Cedar Creek and Middle River.

Butz said that because of funding limitations only high priority projects will get attention and indicated a part of the Missouri unit would qualify.

"One of the most urgent of these," Butz said, "will be pollution abatement since there are about 2,000 acres of unrehabilitated coal strip-mined lands in the head waters of Cedar Creek and Middle River.

Widow, 84, Raped By 4 Boys

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— An 84- year- old widow living on the 16th floor of a north Philadelphia public housing project is recovering from five days of terror during which she was beaten with a broomstick, stripped, raped, tortured, burned and robbed of her savings by four youths, police said.

The widow, with no known relatives, was so bruised and covered with welts and frightened that she ate nothing during the ordeal.

It began Sunday, police said, when the four youths— aged 10, 11, 12 and 13 knocked on the door of her apartment in the Fairhill Housing Project and asked if they could run an errand.

Recognizing the voices of youths whom police said she knew one lived next door: another had delivered her groceries, the 5- foot- 1, 125-pound woman opened the door and permitted them to enter.

But, police said, the youths immediately ransacked drawers, ripped open a mattress and demanded money.

They found some money, took the only key she had to the door and threatened to kill her if she told anyone about their intrusion, the victim told police.

On Monday, investigators said the youths used the key to enter the apartment and again ransacked the room for money. And they assaulted and raped the woman, police said.

On Tuesday, the youths forced their way into the apartment, raped the woman and burned her on the chest with an electric comb and matches.

The youths returned Wednesday and Thursday and committed similar attacks. A social worker found the apartment in shambles during a visit Friday morning, police said.

The youths were charged with burglary, robbery, rape, vandalism, indecent assault and aggravated assault and battery.

CBS Determined To Stay On Air

NEW YORK (AP) — The Columbia Broadcasting System management has expressed determination to "stay on the air" if its television and radio performers and news correspondents withhold their services beginning Tuesday night.

Dr. Frank Stanton, vice chairman of CBS, said management and supervisory personnel, many of them already filling in for striking technicians, would be tapped for on-the-air roles. Auditions are under way.

The American Federation of Television and Radio Artists told its members Friday that, as of 6 p.m. Tuesday, they must honor picket lines set up in several major cities by technicians striking over a contract dispute.

CBS news anchorman Walter Cronkite and other CBS correspondents earlier had said they would comply with such a union order. Some CBS reporters, members of another union, are expecting to work.

The strike by 1,200 CBS cameramen, technicians and engineers, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, began Nov. 3. The dispute centers on key jurisdiction areas the IBEW is seeking.

Heath Convinced Britain Close To Irish Settlement

BELFAST (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath's twoday fact-finding tour of Northern Ireland has convinced him Britain is on the track toward a political settlement and a good opportunity exists for bringing the violence to an end, sources close to him said today.

Heath has been in Northern Ireland only one other time since his election in 1970. That was Dec. 23, when he made a one-day visit to British troops.

This time, he toured the province extensively, meeting politicians, churchmen, business and labor leaders, students and workers to sample public opinion.

His conclusion, announced at a press conference Friday before his departure for London, was that there has been "a great improvement in Northern Ireland" since he was last here.

Government sources here believe Britain is slowly winning the war against terrorism. At the height of the violence earlier this year, there were some 70 bomb explosions a week in the province and 50 British troops killed or wounded. This week, there were about 20 bomb blasts and one soldier was wounded by a sniper.

The Irish Republican Army now admits it is not winning the fight against 20,000 British troops. Its spokesmen say the struggle is shifting to a political one — trying to weaken the bipartisan support in Britain for the army's struggle to keep order here and encouraging eventual withdrawal of British troops.

Contempt Limited For Chicago 7

CHICAGO (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge has set a limit on the contempt- of-court sentences that may be ordered for the Chicago 7 defendants and their lawyers and has dropped entirely contempt charges against Bobby Seale.

The ruling were made Friday by Judge Edward T. Gignoux, who was sent from Portland, Maine, to hear appeals of contempt citations handed down at the end of the conspiracy trial.

The contempt charges stemmed from the actions of the defendants and the lawyers in the courtroom of Judge Julius J. Hoffman, who heard the case relating to disturbances at the time of the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

By limiting contempt sentences to no more than 177 days, Gignoux agreed with a government motion which sought to avoid jury trials on the contempt-charge appeals.

Contempt sentences of more than six months require a jury trial on appeal.

The charges against Seale also were dropped at the government's request. Seale heads the Black Panther party.

An appeals court had ruled that, if Seale were prosecuted for contempt, the government would have to reveal the contents of eavesdropping logs. The government refused, saying such disclosures would "endanger the national security." Five of the defendants in the trial - which began in September 1969 and ended in February 1971 - were convicted on charges that they individually crossed state lines to incite a riot.

Renard C. Davis, Abbott "Abbie" Hoffman, Thomas Hayden, David Dellinger and Jerry C. Rubin were convicted and sentenced to five years in prison and were fined $5,000 each. They are appealing the convictions.

Two other defendants — Lee Weiner and John Froines — were acquitted of all charges.

The seven defendants, who called themselves the Chicago 7, were held in contempt of court with their lawyers, William Kunstler and Leonard Weinglass, at the end of the trial.

Judge Hoffman sentenced them to terms ranging from four years to two and one half months.

Seale's case was severed from those of the others during the trial, because of his frequent violent outbursts in court.

Bound and gagged in Hoffman's courtroom, Seale protested a variety of things, among them claims that Kunstler and Weinglass were incapable of fairly representing him.

Despite the rulings, Morton Stavis, attorney for the Chicago 7 and the lawyers, said he would press for a trial by jury on the contempt appeals.

Two Flyers Rescued As Battlefield Action Drops

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. Air Force rescue team braved heavy antiaircraft fire and overcast skies today to pull two downed American fliers from North Vietnam.

The rescue occurred as ground troops with dogs closed in on the fliers after a 40-hour chase, an Air Force spokesman announced.

The Saigon command said battlefield action dropped to its lowest level in nearly two months, but allied officials said they saw no signs that North Vietnamese units were pulling out of South Vietnam.

Thunderstorms and overcast skies sharply curtailed U.S. air strikes in the southern panhandle of North Vietnam Friday, U.S. sources said.

The two rescued American pilots are Maj. Norbert J. Maier, 36, Avalon, Pa., and Capt. Kenneth D. Thaete, 33, of Wendell, Idaho. They were shot down Thursday night while flying an F105 as bait to draw surface-to-air-missile fire away from B52 bombers, the Air Force said.

The fliers were on a temporary assignment in Thailand from McConnell Air Force Base near Wichita, Kan., when they were downed in a missile duel 15 miles southwest of the port of Thanh Hoa.

"After we hit the ground, there were enemy troops in the area, and we could hear dogs barking," said Thaete. "Occasionally, they (the North Vietnamese) would fire .50-caliber machine guns apparently to get us to move from our hidden positions.

"We were in a valley between two hills, and the enemy set up two .50-caliber machine gun emplacements on top of each of the hills. The adverse weather in the area made rescue difficult, but it also helped us evade the troops looking for us."

Radio Hanoi claimed two more U.S. jets were shot down over North Vietnam Thursday, raising to six the number of planes Hanoi has claimed were shot down this week. The broadcast made no mention of the fate of the crewmen. The U.S. Command only announced the one loss.

The F105 was the 123rd U.S. jet downed over North Vietnam since the resumption of the bombing of the North last April, the U.S. Command said. During the same period, 129 American crewmen have been killed or captured over the North, the command added.

German Leaders Vie For Last Minute Votes In Elections

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt and opposition challenger Rainer Barzel were vying for last-minute votes today on the eve of one of the closest run elections in West Germany's 23-year history.

Brandt planned to address two rallies during the day in a sentimental journey to Luebeck, the Baltic seaport where he was born, and West Berlin, where he first rose to prominence as governing mayor in the Cold War years of the early 1960s.

Barzel, the Christian Democratic party leader, was to make a quiet tour of his Paderborn constituency in northern Germany with no official speech-making.

Amid forecasts of an unprecedented 90 per cent or better turnout among 40.8 million eligible voters Sunday, the election still appeared undecided.

Brandt skillfully focused attention this week on his popular, Nobel Prize-winning drive for East-West friendship.

Officially closing his campaign Friday night in the Ruhr industrial city of Essen, he announced he hopes to visit East Berlin "before Christmas" if re-elected so he can sign his historic good-neighbor treaty with East Germany, concluded only last week.

Barzel, personally less popular than Brandt but campaigning hard on economic issues, flayed Brandt's men in two final speeches Friday for failing to halt record consumer price rises — now 6.4 per cent ahead of last year's.

"If it continues like this, inflation will undermine our existence," he told supporters in Karlsruhe.

A total of eight parties have fielded candidates for 496 lower-house seats in the voting.

Open House Is Monday

The Matthews Elementary PTA will hold an open house Monday, November 20 from 7:00 to 8:30 p.m. at the school.

11,725 Fords Are Recalled

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Ford Motor Co. is recalling 11,725 1973-model cars and 31,660 1972 model Econoline vans because of possible defects that could cause the front brakes to go out on the vans and engine fires in the cars.

The Ford and Mercury cars, all equipped with 429-4V engines, are being recalled because about 65 of them are suspected of having a carbureator fuel leakage which could cause fires and delayed starting, a Ford spokesman said Friday.

He said about 2,540 of the vans have improperly installed front-brake hoses which rub against the front suspension coil springs. That contact could cause the hose to rupture, leaving the van without any front brakes.

All repairs will be made at the company's expense, the spokesman added.

Three Die In State Traffic

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least three persons have been killed in two separate traffic accidents in Missouri this weekend.

Killed in the collision of a car and a tractor-trailer truck on U.S. 60 highway, about six miles west of Springfield, Friday evening was Virgil Gregory Munden, 17, of Springfield, Mo., the driver of the car. Two passengers in the Munden car were injured and taken to St. John's Hospital, Springfield. The patrol said the truck was making a turn when the car plowed into the rear end of the trailer.

A two-vehicle collision Friday night on Rt. 14 in Christian County near Clever, Mo., took the lives of a 17-year-old driver, Larry Scott Rook, of Springfield, and his 15-year-old sister, Kathy Rook. The patrol said the Rook car failed to stop at a stop sign and ran into the path of a truck driven by John Nelson, 26, of Aurora, Mo. The truck hit the Rook car broadside.

Ann Landers

She Still Picks Up Husband's Socks

Dear Ann Landers: Several women teachers at our school have been doing a slow burn over the letter from the lady who doesn't mind picking up her husband's socks. What gets us is this: He's the same guy who drops his underwear, shirts and slacks on the floor, leaves the cheese and crackers on the counter, doesn't take his dishes back to the kitchen after a snack, and thinks it's beneath his dignity to rinse out the bath tub or pick up a towel.

A good marriage is based on mutual respect and consideration. Under this system, everybody picks up his own socks and underwear. You sure missed the boat, Ann. We are very disappointed.--- Disgruntled Teachers On The South Side

Dear D.T.s On The South Side: I'm a happily married woman on the North Side and for 33 years I've been picking up socks and underwear--- and I don't mind in the least. I firmly believe that the wife who resents doing such a simple thing for her husband is really mad at him for something else. I learned early that my husband was a sock-dropper, and he wasn't too careful about where he left his snack dishes, either, but I opted not to retrain him or nag about it. No real marriage is without differences, and I save "Complaint and criticism time" for things that are more important.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I married for the second time. Together this wonderful guy and I have boys aged 13, 14, 15, 16 and 20. Our daughter is 11.

One of the young teachers at school has been taking Bill, my 13- year- old- stepson, to a gun club where they spend several hours a week. This teacher has been allowing to boy to keep his (the teacher's) gun at our house. The biggest thing in Bill's life right now is being able to hang that gun on the wall of his bedroom.

Ann, there are boys in and out of this house constantly. Bill's 15- year- old brother is seeing a psychiatrist. In the past month he has set off dynamite in the back yard and rigged up a gasoline bomb which, thank God, did not go off. Bill and his 15- year- old brother fight a great deal. They both have quick tempers.

My husband is afraid not to let his son have his way because he threatens to go live with his mother whenever there's a disagreement. I am uneasy about the gun and don't know what to do. How far should I go?--- Worry Wart in Virginia

Dear W.W.: You need a third party to mediate this hassle. I recommend the clergyman who married you. I do not approve of children having guns as toys, much less the real thing. Guns are for killing and toy guns are for make- believe killing. The steady diet of violence has had a marked influence on young people according to many experts.

With approximately 20 million hand guns loose in our country, we should be trying to figure out a way to get guns out of the hands of people who have no business having them. Most people who kill were law abiding citizens--- until they shot somebody.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an 18- year- old girl and I spend half my time washing my hair. It's long and thick and beautiful, but to keep it that way I have to shampoo it at least once a day. If I wash my hair in the morning it's dirty by dinner time. If I wash it in the evening it's dirty by morning. I've tried every shampoo, rinse, and soap on the market but nothing helps. Any suggestions? Greasy In New England

Dear G.: I checked with beauticians and skin specialists and they seem to think the problem isn't your hair but your head. You have a strong preoccupation with your crowning glory. It doesn't really need all that shampooing but you have a compulsion to wash it, regardless. I'm sure you won't care for my answer, but here it is.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide" will relieve your anxiety. To receive a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope (16c postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Ann Landers

She Still Picks Up Husband's Socks

Dear Ann Landers: Several women teachers at our school have been doing a slow burn over the letter from the lady who doesn't mind picking up her husband's socks. What gets us is this: He's the same guy who drops his underwear, shirts and slacks on the floor, leaves the cheese and crackers on the counter, doesn't take his dishes back to the kitchen after a snack, and thinks it's beneath his dignity to rinse out the bath tub or pick up a towel.

A good marriage is based on mutual respect and consideration. Under this system, everybody picks up his own socks and underwear. You sure missed the boat, Ann. We are very disappointed.--- Disgruntled Teachers On The South Side

Dear D.T.s On The South Side: I'm a happily married woman on the North Side and for 33 years I've been picking up socks and underwear--- and I don't mind in the least. I firmly believe that the wife who resents doing such a simple thing for her husband is really mad at him for something else. I learned early that my husband was a sock-dropper, and he wasn't too careful about where he left his snack dishes, either, but I opted not to retrain him or nag about it. No real marriage is without differences, and I save "Complaint and criticism time" for things that are more important.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I married for the second time. Together this wonderful guy and I have boys aged 13, 14, 15, 16 and 20. Our daughter is 11.

One of the young teachers at school has been taking Bill, my 13- year- old- stepson, to a gun club where they spend several hours a week. This teacher has been allowing to boy to keep his (the teacher's) gun at our house. The biggest thing in Bill's life right now is being able to hang that gun on the wall of his bedroom.

Ann, there are boys in and out of this house constantly. Bill's 15- year- old brother is seeing a psychiatrist. In the past month he has set off dynamite in the back yard and rigged up a gasoline bomb which, thank God, did not go off. Bill and his 15- year- old brother fight a great deal. They both have quick tempers.

My husband is afraid not to let his son have his way because he threatens to go live with his mother whenever there's a disagreement. I am uneasy about the gun and don't know what to do. How far should I go?--- Worry Wart in Virginia

Dear W.W.: You need a third party to mediate this hassle. I recommend the clergyman who married you. I do not approve of children having guns as toys, much less the real thing. Guns are for killing and toy guns are for make- believe killing. The steady diet of violence has had a marked influence on young people according to many experts.

With approximately 20 million hand guns loose in our country, we should be trying to figure out a way to get guns out of the hands of people who have no business having them. Most people who kill were law abiding citizens--- until they shot somebody.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an 18- year- old girl and I spend half my time washing my hair. It's long and thick and beautiful, but to keep it that way I have to shampoo it at least once a day. If I wash my hair in the morning it's dirty by dinner time. If I wash it in the evening it's dirty by morning. I've tried every shampoo, rinse, and soap on the market but nothing helps. Any suggestions? Greasy In New England

Dear G.: I checked with beauticians and skin specialists and they seem to think the problem isn't your hair but your head. You have a strong preoccupation with your crowning glory. It doesn't really need all that shampooing but you have a compulsion to wash it, regardless. I'm sure you won't care for my answer, but here it is.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide" will relieve your anxiety. To receive a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope (16c postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Scott County 4-H'ers Honored

BENTON— Over 325 Scott County 4— H members received recognition awards for outstanding performance and completion of the 4— H year at the 1972 4— H Members Recognition Night Nov. 9 at the Kelly Elementary School multi-purpose room.

"Were You There-- 1972 4— H in Action" was the title of a slide presentation and speech given by Dee Goedeke, area youth agent. The slides showed scenes from 4— H activities during the project year.

The top award of the evening was the "I Dare You" award. This award is presented to the outstanding 4— H boy and girl. It distinguishes outstanding leadership and citizenship. This year's recipients were Carol Jean Weber of Kelso, a member of the Kelso Willing Workers 4— H Club, and Joseph William Myers of the Sikeston 4— H Club.

The award consisted of a book titled, "I Dare You", written by William H. Danforth, and a certificate with the recipient's name on it.

This, the highest of all county level awards, stresses a four- fold program of individual growth: mental, social, physical and character. It is provided through the courtesy of the American Youth Foundation through its "I Dare You" committee.

Another very important award is the Missouri 4— H Key Award which recognizes 4— H members for club and county achievement. In recognition of their contributions to their club, communities and county, the award was presented to Nancy L. Kieffer and Carol Jean Weber, both members of the Kelso Willing Workers 4— H club. They were presented a certificate and the Missouri 4— H Key Award necklace.

In recognition of their formation of new clubs, 4— H club charters were presented to: Benton Sandy Hills 4— H Club, Mrs. Larry Hopper, club leader; Blodgett Busy Bee 4— H Club, Mrs. Kenneth Nickens, club leader; and Illmo— Scott City Action Four 4— H Club, Mrs. Larry Burford, club leader.

The highlight for first year members was the presentation of the outstanding First Year Boy and Outstanding First Year Girl of the club participating. Members receiving recognition certificates were Danny Essner and Theresa Essner of the Chaffee Go— Getters; Linda Burford of Illmo— Scott City Action Four; Mike Jansen and LaVern Menz of Kelso Willing Workers, Stephen Alden and Debbie Dirnberger of New Hamburg Eager Beavers; Tom Kluesner of Oran Peppy Peppers; and Carl Leonard and Liz Ahlvin of Sikeston 4— H Club.

Club seals were presented to five 4— H clubs for their work in 1972. The top club award, the Blue Ribbon Seal, was presented to the Sikeston 4— H club and to the Kelso Willing Workers 4— H Club. The second highest award, the Gold Seal, was presented to the Chaffee Go— Getters and the New Hamburg Eager Beavers. The Silver Seal award was presented to the Oran Peppy Peppers and the Sikeston Rainbow 4— H Club.

THE 1972 4-H "I DARE YOU" Award was presented to Joseph William Myers, left, of the Sikeston 4-H Club and Carol Jean Weber of the Kelso Willing Workers Club at the annual 4-H Recognition Night held Nov. 9 at Benton. The awards were presented by Dee Goedeke, area youth agent.

The presentation of the 1972 county winners in the National 4— H Awards Program was another major recognition segment. These awards recognize excellence in a particular project area and are sponsored by many donors to the National 4— H Foundation.

Project areas and 4— H members recognized for their excellence included: achievement, Carol Jean Weber of Kelso; bread, Luann Smith and Deaonna Ressel, both of Kelso; clothing, Paula Siebert of Chaffee, Judy Staebel of Kelso, Debbie Essner of Kelso and Pam Scheeter of New Hamburg; conservation of natural resources, Peter C. Myers Jr. of Sikeston.

Dog care and training, Mary Jane Weber of Kelso; Dress Revue, Carol Jean Weber of Kelso, Paula Siebert of Chaffee and Pam Scheeter of New Hamburg; electricity, Kevin Crader and Stanley Uhrhen both of Chaffee; food and nutrition, Carol Jean Weber of Kelso, Geri Smith of Kelso, Marilyn Schlosser of New Hamburg, Mary Steimle of New Hamburg and Cheryl Robert of Kelso.

Food and preservation, Nancy Kieffer of Kelso, Mariesa Crader of Chaffee, Kim Crade of Chaffee and Dorothy Heuring of New Hamburg; petroleum power, Joy Myers of Sikeston; Public speaking, Mariesa Crader of Chaffee and Joy Myers of Sikeston.

Sears of Cape Girardeau sponsored two knitting awards. First place award of a $10 certificate was won by Luann Smith of Kelso. Second place winner of a $5 certificate was Deaonna Ressel of Kelso.

Each member who completed a project and fulfilled the requirements to be a 4— H member received a recognition pin for the completion of a year as a member.

Chaffee 4— H Club: Tammy Dudley, Becky Sullinger, Danny Essner and Teresa Essner.

Haywood City Blue Ribbon 4— H: Merilyn Dorsey and Mabel Dorsey.

Illmo— Scott City Action Four: Steve Payne, Robin Payne, Diane Payne, Beth Randol, Debbie Boyette, Tony Weaver, Melody Jefferies, Sherri Jefferies, Brenda Jefferies, Ronda Green, Faye Cannon, Renee Hahn, Barbara Davis, Carol Brantley, Joyce Brantley, Steve Brazel, Terry Holder, Carol Holder, Sandy Holder, Susan Cowell, Billy Bollinger, Gayle Miller, Jimmy Holder, Shane Burton, Linda Burford, Jody Simmons, Lorene Petitt, Karen Ellinger, Connie Jacobs, Darla Jacobs and Tammy Urhahn.

Scott County 4-H'ers Honored

BENTON— Over 325 Scott County 4— H members received recognition awards for outstanding performance and completion of the 4— H year at the 1972 4— H Members Recognition Night Nov. 9 at the Kelly Elementary School multi-purpose room.

"Were You There– 1972 4— H in Action" was the title of a slide presentation and speech given by Dee Goedeke, area youth agent. The slides showed scenes from 4— H activities during the project year.

The top award of the evening was the "I Dare You" award. This award is presented to the outstanding 4— H boy and girl. It distinguishes outstanding leadership and citizenship. This year's recipients were Carol Jean Weber of Kelso, a member of the Kelso Willing Workers 4— H Club, and Joseph William Myers of the Sikeston 4— H Club.

The award consisted of a book titled, "I Dare You", written by William H. Danforth, and a certificate with the recipient's name on it.

This, the highest of all county level awards, stresses a four- fold program of individual growth: mental, social, physical and character. It is provided through the courtesy of the American Youth Foundation through its "I Dare You" committee.

Another very important award is the Missouri 4— H Key Award which recognizes 4— H members for club and county achievement. In recognition of their contributions to their club, communities and county, the award was presented to Nancy L. Kieffer and Carol Jean Weber, both members of the Kelso Willing Workers 4— H club. They were presented a certificate and the Missouri 4— H Key Award necklace.

In recognition of their formation of new clubs, 4— H club charters were presented to: Benton Sandy Hills 4— H Club, Mrs. Larry Hopper, club leader; Blodgett Busy Bee 4— H Club, Mrs. Kenneth Nickens, club leader; and Illmo— Scott City Action Four 4— H Club, Mrs. Larry Burford, club leader.

The highlight for first year members was the presentation of the outstanding First Year Boy and Outstanding First Year Girl of the club participating. Members receiving recognition certificates were Danny Essner and Theresa Essner of the Chaffee Go— Getters; Linda Burford of Illmo— Scott City Action Four; Mike Jansen and LaVern Menz of Kelso Willing Workers, Stephen Alden and Debbie Dirnberger of New Hamburg Eager Beavers; Tom Kluesner of Oran Peppy Peppers; and Carl Leonard and Liz Ahlvin of Sikeston 4— H Club.

Club seals were presented to five 4— H clubs for their work in 1972. The top club award, the Blue Ribbon Seal, was presented to the Sikeston 4— H club and to the Kelso Willing Workers 4— H Club. The second highest award, the Gold Seal, was presented to the Chaffee Go— Getters and the New Hamburg Eager Beavers. The Silver Seal award was presented to the Oran Peppy Peppers and the Sikeston Rainbow 4— H Club.

THE 1972 4-H "I DARE YOU" Award was presented to Joseph William Myers, left, of the Sikeston 4-H Club and Carol Jean Weber of the Kelso Willing Workers Club at the annual 4-H Recognition Night held Nov. 9 at Benton. The awards were presented by Dee Goedeke, area youth agent.

The presentation of the 1972 county winners in the National 4— H Awards Program was another major recognition segment. These awards recognize excellence in a particular project area and are sponsored by many donors to the National 4— H Foundation.

Project areas and 4— H members recognized for their excellence included: achievement, Carol Jean Weber of Kelso; bread, Luann Smith and Deaonna Ressel, both of Kelso; clothing, Paula Siebert of Chaffee, Judy Staebel of Kelso, Debbie Essner of Kelso and Pam Scheeter of New Hamburg; conservation of natural resources, Peter C. Myers Jr. of Sikeston.

Dog care and training, Mary Jane Weber of Kelso; Dress Revue, Carol Jean Weber of Kelso, Paula Siebert of Chaffee and Pam Scheeter of New Hamburg; electricity, Kevin Crader and Stanley Uhrhen both of Chaffee; food and nutrition, Carol Jean Weber of Kelso, Geri Smith of Kelso, Marilyn Schlosser of New Hamburg, Mary Steimle of New Hamburg and Cheryl Robert of Kelso.

Food and preservation, Nancy Kieffer of Kelso, Mariesa Crader of Chaffee, Kim Crade of Chaffee and Dorothy Heuring of New Hamburg; petroleum power, Joy Myers of Sikeston; Public speaking, Mariesa Crader of Chaffee and Joy Myers of Sikeston.

Sears of Cape Girardeau sponsored two knitting awards. First place award of a $10 certificate was won by Luann Smith of Kelso. Second place winner of a $5 certificate was Deaonna Ressel of Kelso.

Pats' Get Tough

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New England Patriots are getting tough. Not against the rest of the National Football League. Just with their own players.

Phil Bengtson, who makes his debut Sunday against Buffalo as head coach of the oncepromising, now-disintegrating Patriots, will be doing it without the Pats' No. 1 running back, Carl Garrett, suspended by the club for the remainder of the season because he missed a workout.

The Miami Dolphins may get one of their toughest workouts of the season Sunday when they face the New York Jets.

The Dolphins are aiming for their 10th straight victory of the season and, if they pick it up, they'll not only clinch the American Conference East championship—the first playoff berth to be locked up—but will take a giant step toward the first perfect record attained by an NFL team in 30 years.

But the Jets in general and quarterback Joe Namath in particular have a few scores to settle. They lost 27-17 to Miami last month when Bob Griese was quarterbacking the Dolphins. Now that he's injured, Earl Morrall is calling the signals. And earlier this week, Morrall made a few calls which could have Namath aching for more than mere victory.

Sunday's other games have Pittsburgh at Cleveland in an AFC Central showdown, Minnesota at Los Angeles, Oakland at Denver, San Diego at Kansas City, Dallas at Philadelphia, Green Bay at Houston, New Orleans at Detroit, San Fr$ncisco at Chicago, the New York Giants at St. Louis and Baltimore at Cincinnati. On Monday night, Washington hosts Atlanta.

Morrall is apparently so confident he'll guide the Dolphins to victory that he's offered a few opinions about Namath, ignoring the unwritten rule that it's not smart to say things which could arouse the opposition.

Morrall acknowledges Namath's talent but, speaking of his lifestyle, says: "I don't want to be like him. And I hope my kids, and the younger generation, don't grow up to be like him."

The Steelers have been waiting 40 years for a championship of any kind. Now they think they've finally got one. But they have to get past the Browns first—not only on Sunday but again in two weeks. Cleveland, which came from behind in the closing minutes to beat San Diego last Monday night, trails Pittsburgh by a game.

It's a collision of defenses in Los Angeles. The Vikings have the best one in the National Conference, the Rams' the second-best. The Vikings are tied with Detroit for second place in the NFC Central race, the Rams lead in the West by half a game.

The Raiders, back atop the AFC West by half a game, will be out to avenge the 30-23 upset the Broncos handed them earlier this season. And the Chiefs, having already beaten San Diego once this year, must do it again to at least keep pace with Oakland.

MOBERLY, Mo.--- Albri Cassell stuffed in 25 points in leading Three Rivers Community college of Poplar Bluff into the finals of the Moberly Junior College basketball tournament Friday night.

The freshman from Charleston, paced a five man double figure Raider barrage that pushed them to a 120-78 victory over Clarida, Iowa, and into tonight's title bout against Moberly.

Three Rivers muscled its way to a 46- 34 first half lead and broke open the game in the second half with a run and gun offense that pushed it over the century mark for the second time this season. The team ranks with the leading offenses among Junior College's in the nation.

Lennies McFerren, a sophomore from Howardville, contributed 20 points for the Raiders while Wendall Copeland, Northern McIntyre and Mark Baker contributed 16, 12 and 10 respectively.

Norm Thompson ripped in 30 points for Clarinda to claim high game individual honors.

Prussic Acid Poison; Fall Grazing Threat

By THOMAS A. BROWN, JR.
Area Agronomy Specialist

BLOOMFIELD — Several questions from farmers have been coming to the University Extension Center recently pertaining to the danger of grazing grain sorghum stubble.

There is danger of prussic acid poisoning of cattle that are grazing stubble of grain sorghum, sudangrass, sorghum-sudan crosses, and other sorghum crops. Livestock producers and dairymen should be aware of this danger and take steps to avoid it. In spite of the danger involved, such stalk fields will provide lots of grazing in many cases.

Fall is the season when conditions are usually most favorable for prussic acid poisoning. Prussic acid is most apt to form when plants have been stunted by frost, drowth, and freezing or near freezing temperatures. Forage crops are likely to be most dangerous when plants are less than 18 inches high. Farmers should be especially cautious of plants that are wilted following frost. Fields containing such plants may be grazed again after normal growth resumes. Such fields are absolutely safe for grazing after the plants are dead and thoroughly cured. Neither sudan grass or sorghum- sudan crosses are dangerous when preserved as hay or silage after the ensiling process is complete.

Visible signs of prussic acid poisoning are labored breathing, spasms, or staggering; however, animals sometimes die without showing such symptoms. If cattle become poisoned from prussic acid, they should be removed from the field, and a veterinarian should be called immediately. Treatment must often be administered quickly to avoid death.

Soybean Hearing Set For December 19

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.-- A public hearing on a proposed referendum to create a Missouri Soybean Merchandising Council has been scheduled for Tuesday, December 19, in the 14th floor conference room of the Jefferson State Office Building, Jefferson City.

Commissioner Dexter D. Davis, Missouri Department of Agriculture, reports that Charles Ross of Caruthersville, an official of the Missouri Soybean Growers Association, delivered to his office on November 1 a petition bearing signatures of 1,923 soybean producers requesting the hearing. If approved, Davis will set a date for a statewide referendum in which registered soybean producers may vote on the proposal.

The Soybean Merchandising Council, if created, would permit the producers to check-off one- half cent per bushel for soybean research and market promotion.

Missouri law requires registration of soybean producers- growers in order to be eligible to vote yes or no in the referendum. Two avenues of registration are available, either of which must be completed on or before December 8, 1972:

(1) The producer- grower may mail his name, address, county and production record for the past three years (1972-71- 70) to: Commissioner of Agriculture, Box 630, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101.

(2) Go to his local county ASCS office and register this same information (before or by December 8, 1972).

Any grower who produced and marketed one bushel or more of soybeans in the past season is eligible to both register and attend the public hearing in Jefferson City on December 19, Davis said.

BOSTON—Star defenseman Bobby Orr will return to the Boston Bruins for their game Saturday with the New York Islanders.

The Ripper-Hipper pulls much easier than straight tine sub-soilers because this penetration "bubbles up" the soil in front of the shank. Twice the number of acres can be covered with the Ripper-Hipper and you bed up your land as you go.

The depth of the ripper tine and the pitch angle and depth of the hipper is quickly and easily adjusted. Subsoil down the center of seed beds. Shattering and cracking the plow pan aerates the soil. Pats' Get Tough

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New England Patriots are getting tough. Not against the rest of the National Football League. Just with their own players.

Phil Bengtson, who makes his debut Sunday against Buffalo as head coach of the onceпromising, now-disintegrating Patriots, will be doing it without the Pats' No. 1 running back, Carl Garrett, suspended by the club for the remainder of the season because he missed a workout.

The Miami Dolphins may get one of their toughest workouts of the season Sunday when they face the New York Jets.

The Dolphins are aiming for their 10th straight victory of the season and, if they pick it up, they'll not only clinch the American Conference East championship—the first playoff berth to be locked up—but will take a giant step toward the first perfect record attained by an NFL team in 30 years.

But the Jets in general and quarterback Joe Namath in particular have a few scores to settle. They lost 27-17 to Miami last month when Bob Griese was quarterbacking the Dolphins. Now that he's injured, Earl Morrall is calling the signals. And earlier this week, Morrall made a few calls which could have Namath aching for more than mere victory.

Sunday's other games have Pittsburgh at Cleveland in an AFC Central showdown, Minnesota at Los Angeles, Oakland at Denver, San Diego at Kansas City, Dallas at Philadelphia, Green Bay at Houston, New Orleans at Detroit, San Fr$ncisco at Chicago, the New York Giants at St. Louis and Baltimore at Cincinnati. On Monday night, Washington hosts Atlanta.

Morrall is apparently so confident he'll guide the Dolphins to victory that he's offered a few opinions about Namath, ignoring the unwritten rule that it's not smart to say things which could arouse the opposition.

Morrall acknowledges Namath's talent but, speaking of his lifestyle, says: "I don't want to be like him. And I hope my kids, and the younger generation, don't grow up to be like him."

The Steelers have been waiting 40 years for a championship of any kind. Now they think they've finally got one. But they have to get past the Browns first—not only on Sunday but again in two weeks. Cleveland, which came from behind in the closing minutes to beat San Diego last Monday night, trails Pittsburgh by a game.

It's a collision of defenses in Los Angeles. The Vikings have the best one in the National Conference, the Rams' the second-best. The Vikings are tied with Detroit for second place in the NFC Central race, the Rams lead in the West by half a game.

The Raiders, back atop the AFC West by half a game, will be out to avenge the 30-23 upset the Broncos handed them earlier this season. And the Chiefs, having already beaten San Diego once this year, must do it again to at least keep pace with Oakland.

MOBERLY, Mo.--- Albri Cassell stuffed in 25 points in leading Three Rivers Community college of Poplar Bluff into the finals of the Moberly Junior College basketball tournament Friday night.

The freshman from Charleston, paced a five man double figure Raider barrage that pushed them to a 120-78 victory over Clarida, Iowa, and into tonight's title bout against Moberly.

Three Rivers muscled its way to a 46- 34 first half lead and broke open the game in the second half with a run and gun offense that pushed it over the century mark for the second time this season. The team ranks with the leading offenses among Junior College's in the nation.

Lennies McFerren, a sophomore from Howardville, contributed 20 points for the Raiders while Wendall Copeland, Northern McIntyre and Mark Baker contributed 16, 12 and 10 respectively.

Norm Thompson ripped in 30 points for Clarinda to claim high game individual honors.

Prussic Acid Poison; Fall Grazing Threat

By THOMAS A. BROWN, JR.
Area Agronomy Specialist

BLOOMFIELD — Several questions from farmers have been coming to the University Extension Center recently pertaining to the danger of grazing grain sorghum stubble.

There is danger of prussic acid poisoning of cattle that are grazing stubble of grain sorghum, sudangrass, sorghum-sudan crosses, and other sorghum crops. Livestock producers and dairymen should be aware of this danger and take steps to avoid it. In spite of the danger involved, such stalk fields will provide lots of grazing in many cases.

Fall is the season when conditions are usually most favorable for prussic acid poisoning. Prussic acid is most apt to form when plants have been stunted by frost, drowth, and freezing or near freezing temperatures. Forage crops are likely to be most dangerous when plants are less than 18 inches high. Farmers should be especially cautious of plants that are wilted following frost. Fields containing such plants may be grazed again after normal growth resumes. Such fields are absolutely safe for grazing after the plants are dead and thoroughly cured. Neither sudan grass or sorghum- sudan crosses are dangerous when preserved as hay or silage after the ensiling process is complete.

Visible signs of prussic acid poisoning are labored breathing, spasms, or staggering; however, animals sometimes die without showing such symptoms. If cattle become poisoned from prussic acid, they should be removed from the field, and a veterinarian should be called immediately. Treatment must often be administered quickly to avoid death.

Soybean Hearing Set For December 19

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.-- A public hearing on a proposed referendum to create a Missouri Soybean Merchandising Council has been scheduled for Tuesday, December 19, in the 14th floor conference room of the Jefferson State Office Building, Jefferson City.

Commissioner Dexter D. Davis, Missouri Department of Agriculture, reports that Charles Ross of Caruthersville, an official of the Missouri Soybean Growers Association, delivered to his office on November 1 a petition bearing signatures of 1,923 soybean producers requesting the hearing. If approved, Davis will set a date for a statewide referendum in which registered soybean producers may vote on the proposal.

The Soybean Merchandising Council, if created, would permit the producers to check-off one- half cent per bushel for soybean research and market promotion.

Missouri law requires registration of soybean producers- growers in order to be eligible to vote yes or no in the referendum. Two avenues of registration are available, either of which must be completed on or before December 8, 1972:

(1) The producer- grower may mail his name, address, county and production record for the past three years (1972-71- 70) to: Commissioner of Agriculture, Box 630, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101.

(2) Go to his local county ASCS office and register this same information (before or by December 8, 1972).

Any grower who produced and marketed one bushel or more of soybeans in the past season is eligible to both register and attend the public hearing in Jefferson City on December 19, Davis said.

Here's a new tool from FORREST CITY to utilize the full power of your large tractors. Now chisel and disc at the same time. The specially designed ripper tine penetrates the plow pan to crack the soil ahead of the shank. The Ripper-Hipper pulls much easier than straight tine sub-soilers because this penetration "bubbles up" the soil in front of the shank. Twice the number of acres can be covered with the Ripper-Hipper and you bed up your land as you go.

The depth of the ripper tine and the pitch angle and depth of the hipper is quickly and easily adjusted. Subsoil down the center of seed beds. Shattering and cracking the plow pan aerates the soil. Loose soil under the seed bed absorbs and retains moisture. Young plants establish good root systems early to withstand droughts. Compaction is eliminated. The planter wheel is the heaviest pressure over the row.

WHAT DOES NO-FAULT INSURANCE MEAN?
Perhaps you have read about No-Fault insurance. Ultimately, this will reduce the number of claims going to Court for settlement and will speed up payment of insurance claims. It is not intended to reduce the number of claims adjusters.
The U. S. Dept. of Labor states: "Employment of claims adjusters is expected to increase at a rapid rate through the 70's . . ." Adjusting is a profession of great variety and growing opportunity.
Can you qualify? Write today for a local interview giving full name, complete address, phone number, education and previous work experience.

WHAT DOES NO-FAULT INSURANCE MEAN?

Perhaps you have read about No-Fault insurance. Ultimately, this will reduce the number of claims going to Court for settlement and will speed up payment of insurance claims. It is not intended to reduce the number of claims adjusters.

The U. S. Dept. of Labor states: "Employment of claims adjusters is expected to increase at a rapid rate through the 70's . . ." Adjusting is a profession of great variety and growing opportunity.

Can you qualify? Write today for a local interview giving full name, complete address, phone number, education and previous work experience.

What's The Law

The Case Of The Friendly Pied Piper

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Marty operated a small ice cream vending truck that had bells that jingled, jangled, jingled. And, when those bells jingled, jangled, jingled, it was like music to the ears of all the neighborhood kids. In fact, they all but danced as they followed his truck around through quiet winding streets.

On one occasion, however, when Marty stopped to dispense his delights to several anxious children, one of them, little Suzy, was struck by a passing car. What's more, her father blamed Marty for the accident and sued him for his daughter's injuries.

"He's suing the wrong guy," protested Marty in court. "It wasn't my truck that struck little Suzy. I'm just the friendly ice cream vendor. All kids love me and I love all kids."

"Then he should have taken precautions to protect them," retorted the father. "He was like the friendly Pied Piper. When he rang his bells, he knew that children followed him. It was his duty to exercise care for their safety and he didn't do it. His only concern was in selling ice cream."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the Pied Piper pay for little Suzy's injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that when an ice cream vendor parks his automobile in a public street to sell ice cream to children who run out into the street to meet him, he creates a situation that is dangerous to the children from passing cars. Consequently, he has a duty to take precautions to prevent injuries to them. Since Marty took no such precautions, concluded the judge, he's liable for little Suzy's injuries.

The New York Yankees won four straight pennants when they won in 1964. It was their last flag winning year.

Penermon Community ProvidesModernHousing

By JOYCE LEDBETTER

PENERMON — The Penermon community in Stoddard County, located two miles south of Essex, was established in the 1970s to provide modernized housing for displaced farmworkers and other rural families of modest means. Homesites were carved out of farmland owned by Christian Liberty Missionary Baptist Association. Some 28 homes were built from 1966 to 1968 for private family ownership through Farmers Home Administration rural housing loans.

The present moderator of Christian Liberty Missionary Baptist Association of Southeast Missouri is the Rev. J. W. Gwin, of 1006 Maude St. in Sikeston.

Since 1966, Christian Liberty has helped more than 43 families in Stoddard and Mississippi counties to become owners of modern frame and brick homes. In the community named for its former moderator, the Rev. J. O. Penermon, Christian Liberty co-signed contracts with distressed families otherwise unable to qualify for Farmers Home Administration home loans.

This better-home program came into existence due to technological changes in cash crop agriculture and reduced acreage of cotton produced in the area.

Some landlords were selling their farms and tenant houses were being demolished. Farm tenants were left without homes for their families. Many of them with large numbers of children could find no place to live. Even Farmers Home Administration could not buy land to construct homes for low-income familes in some areas.

Christian Liberty began selling 15 acres in Stoddard County marked off for home sites and, by working together with the FHA, it became possible for low-income families to qualify for FHA housing loans.

The incorporated village of Penermon with its present population of 275 citizens received a newly constructed sewage treatment facility which was dedicated on Oct. 12. The results of a government grant of about $42,000. The construction of the facility was a contribution of Job Corps, a division of the U. S. Department of Interior. The facility, constructed on 4.35 acres of land, was contributed by Christian Liberty.

A community building on five-acre public park was also a contribution of Christian Liberty, plus 23 acres of home -site lots on which 28 modern frame and brick homes are supplied with city water, telephones, streetlights, modern baths and sewage facilities as well as many other conveniences for a total of 32½ acres of modern village.

The sponsors of the sewage treatment facility were Christian Liberty, Mingo Job Corps, Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation, Bootheel Regional Planning Commission, Economic Development Council, Farmers Home Administration and the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Penermon is a living example of the Christian Liberty concern for both life after death but first life after birth.

Kirkpatrick Known As Jolly Green Giant

(AP)— Three main characteristics mark jovial Jim Kirkpatrick, one of the few Democrats who emerged a winner in the recent onslaught by Republicans in the general election.

Kirkpatrick, the 68- year-old, three- term secretary of state, always wears green.

One of the most prolific speakers in state government, the Irish man is usually well armed with jokes. And he seldom wears a frown.

The week after he won reelection by 300,000 votes, he gave four speeches.

During the campaign, the "Jolly Green Giant," as his staff calls him, got up to 15 requests a week for speeches.

This put a burden on John Ashford, Kirkpatrick's administrative assistant, who writes all his boss's speeches.

Ashford may have the most complete speech library in Jefferson City.

He also provides many of the jokes for the banquet trial. Here are some:

"It's really a privilege for me to be invited by you ladies to come here and speak this evening. I'm married and what I'm usually invited to do is listen."

"I'd heard one male critic of women's liberation ask the other day, 'Does it ever seem to you some women have 100 million spokesmen and no listener?"

"Before all you liberated women decide you're sorry you invited a male chauvinist like me, think about the rare privilege you're enjoying having me here.

"That's not intended to sound conceited...at the rate the Democratic party is winning elections, a Democratic state official may soon be as scarce as a whopping crane.

"Frankly the outcome of some of the other races disturbed us. The results did convince us that closing the bars on election day makes sense. It's the next day, after you read the result, that you need the drinks.

"When I was a youngster I was told anyone could win high office. After Nov. 7, I believe it.

"I lost my first bid for office to a man I doubt many of you remember...Warren Hearnes outgoing Democratic governor.

"I know just how Tuesday's losers feel. Almost winning an election is like almost beating a train to a crossing.

"As one politician put it, 'I was beaten fair and square and I'm gonna send my opponent a nice, warm, friendly note of congratulations. Tell me, how many K's are there in skunk?'' "One candidate was beaten so badly they put a sign across his campaign headquarters— 'Opened by Mistake'

"We should never give up our two- party system. If we crossed a donkey with an elephant, do you realize what we'd end up with?

"A jackass that never forgets."

"I think all Americans were upset about the Watergate scandal.

"Of course, one good thing about having our phones bugged... it's cheaper than paying for an answering service. When the staff comes back from lunch all they have to do is call Republican headquarters and ask, 'Any messages?''

"We did have one problem at national headquarters. A cleaning woman sprayed for bugs and two phones went dead."

THAI ART TRAVELING

BANGKOK (AP) -- Thailand will arrange to display some of its ancient art treasures in the United States and Canada this fall, Thai officials report.

Officials said a shipment of 93 pieces of art will be air-freighted to the United States.

The display, sponsored by the Asia Association of America, starts in New York Oct. 5, moves to Cleveland, Jan. 9; Indiana March 21; Montreal, July 1; Seattle, Sept. 17, and then Dallas, Nov. 1.

Gurman Resigns From State Law Enforcement Council

(AP) — Isaac Gurman resigned today as ch irman of the Missouri Law Enforcement Assistance Council.

Gurman has been chairman of the council for six years. His resignation is effective Jan. 1. He has been active in criminal justice for 40 years.

In a letter to Gov.-elect Christopher S. Bond, Gurman offered to assist the new chairman in the first weeks after the transition in government.

The council is within the Department of Community Affairs and administers federal funds for the justice and law enforcement systems.

It was instrumental in the passage of the new public defender law and will administer about $400,000 in federal money for the program.

Refuse To Change District Boundaries

(AP)— The Missouri Advisory Council on Historic Sites and Buildings has refused to change the boundaries of the Lafayette Square historic district in St. Louis.

"The historic district is a good architectural example of a residential subdivision of the 1880's." the council said today in a statement.

The boundaries of the district, which was placed on the National Register of Historic places in June, differs slightly from the boundaries of the district created by the St. Louis Board of Albermen.

By reaffirming the boundaries of the district, construction of part of the north- south distributor highway Route 755 may be affected, the council said.

"Owners are eligible to apply for federal Housing and Urban Development funds to assist in restoration of the buildings," said state parks director Joseph Jaeger Jr.

Mexico's Tarahumara Indians compete in barefoot races that often continue for 48 hours. As they run, they kick wooden balls which are as large as oranges when the race begins but wear down to half that size.

Crew Of Military Plane Foils Hijack

TAIPEI (AP) — The crew of a U. S. military aerial refueling plane overpowered and disarmed a young Chinese who apparently was attempting to hijack their four-engine jet today, a U. S. spokesman said.

The 17 - year - old boy, who was carrying a shotgun, penetrated secruity patrols at Tainan Air Base near Tainan City in southern Taiwan. He boarded the KC135 refueling tanker in darkness this morning, the spokesman said.

He was turned over to Chinese authorities, the spokesman added.

What's The Law

The Case Of The Friendly Pied Piper

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Marty operated a small ice cream vending truck that had bells that jingled, jangled, jingled. And, when those bells jingled, jangled, jingled, it was like music to the ears of all the neighborhood kids. In fact, they all but danced as they followed his truck around through quiet winding streets.

On one occasion, however, when Marty stopped to dispense his delights to several anxious children, one of them, little Suzy, was struck by a passing car. What's more, her father blamed Marty for the accident and sued him for his daughter's injuries.

"He's suing the wrong guy," protested Marty in court. "It wasn't my truck that struck little Suzy. I'm just the friendly ice cream vendor. All kids love me and I love all kids."

"Then he should have taken precautions to protect them," retorted the father. "He was like the friendly Pied Piper. When he rang his bells, he knew that children followed him. It was his duty to exercise care for their safety and he didn't do it. His only concern was in selling ice cream."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the Pied Piper pay for little Suzy's injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that when an ice cream vendor parks his automobile in a public street to sell ice cream to children who run out into the street to meet him, he creates a situation that is dangerous to the children from passing cars. Consequently, he has a duty to take precautions to prevent injuries to them. Since Marty took no such precautions, concluded the judge, he's liable for little Suzy's injuries.

Washington area, Ziegler said.

Ziegler has declined to predict if the new Paris talks, to begin Monday, would end the lengthy negotiating process. However, he did say he expected the talks to last for "several days—perhaps longer."

Ziegler said the new talks would be followed by "further consultations with the South Vietnamese and perhaps with the North Vietnamese." And he added the United States "is entering into these talks with a constructive attitude.

"If the other side enters into these negotiations with the same spirit of good will that has characterized these sessions since Oct. 8, we would expect a successful outcome," he said.

Kissinger announced Oct. 26 that a final set of meetings, lasting perhaps three or four days, should wrap up the talks. His announcement came after North Vietnam released details of a tentative nine-point plan for a cease-fire.

Since then, South Vietnam has raised several questions that have appeared to delay final agreement. And North Vietnam said Thursday it will resist any effort to make substantive changes in the original draft settlement.

What About Sex During Pregnancy?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I'm a married man and my wife is pregnant. I would like to know how long can marital relations be going on (she's in her seventh month). She is worrying over my having affairs with other women and is keeping me home when I would like to go out and have some fun talking with other men. I stay home and drink because of this. Is it normal for women to act this way when pregnant?

Dear Reader—Couples' individual living patterns are so variable that even when the wife isn't pregnant it is difficult to answer your question specifically. Some women are confident in their relationship with their husband and are well adjusted and don't make excessive demands on their husbands' time. They know if their husband is away from home it is because of something he has to do or it is important to him.

Other women are less secure, and may be overly demanding on their husbands. These are the women who demand that their husband be home at a specific time on the dot and keep track of all his time and activity whether or not they are pregnant. These are often domineering women who are attempting to control and dominate their husbands and usually try to run the family. Some husbands actually like this, others don't. Each couple has to work out their own interdynamic relationship, and if it isn't worked out satisfactorily they need professional help either in terms of marriage counseling or in some instances psychiatric help. The domineering, over-controlling wife many times does drive her husband to drink. This is part of the dynamics of the alcoholic's wife. She usually needs psychotherapy, but because of her husband's obvious drinking (which she actually precipitates), is able to convince herself that it is her husband's fault and that she is above reproach. The truth is both of them have a problem.

When a woman is pregnant things change and things get more complicated. Many women are very happy and secure in their pregnancy and look forward to the baby and may even have a better disposition during their pregnancy than they do other times. But this isn't always the case. Some women fear that pregnancy makes them unattractive or as you express it, are concerned that their husband will be interested in other women while they are pregnant. This is a real psychological threat to a woman and it's understandable that she might be insecure if this is her reaction to her pregnancy. Such a woman usually needs reassurance by her husband sufficient to convince her of his love. In these circumstances, a man might be well advised, if it is conversation he wants, to invite some of his men friends or married couples to the home and the wife would be wise to encourage this. Or if the family situation permits, you can take your wife out, even if she is in her last month of pregnancy. You can both enjoy the conversation.

As far as marital relations are concerned, most obstetricians feel that this should be avoided during the last month of pregnancy. There is evidence that when the woman reaches a climax that this causes the uterus to start contracting and may precipitate an early labor. If a woman does not reach a climax, then this doesn't occur of course.

Buenos Aires to greet the former populist president who ruled from 1946 to 1955. Thousands tried, forming at least nine marching columns, but they were turned back by some 30,000 troops ringing the airport and dispersed by volleys of tear-gas grenadas.

Peron, who is expected to stay in Argentina about one week, spent his first day in the red-carpeted Presidential Suite of the Ezeiza Hotel, meeting with leaders of other political parties and Peronist union chiefs.

At the political meeting, he discussed the Peronist - organized National Civil Front, formed by Peron's Justicialista party, with nine leaders of smaller parties. If Peron can make the front a solid coalition, it could be the winner in general elections President Alejandro Lanuss has called for next March 11 to return the government to civilian rule.

Peron was ousted by a military coup in 1955 and was forced into exile. He spent the last 12 years in Madrid.

Court Refuses To Rule On Guard Weapons

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The 6th U. S. circuit Court of Appeals has ruled that the training of National Guardsmen and their right to carry loaded weapons is a military and political matter beyond the jurisdiction of the courts.

The ruling came Friday as the court refused to overturn the dismissal of damage suits totaling $11 million brought by parents of three of the four Kent State University students killed during a confrontation with National Guardsmen during a campus disturbance May 4, 1970.

The court said the suits naming former Ohio Gov. James Rhodes, officers of the Ohio National Guard and Kent State President Robert I. White "are, in substance, actions against the state.

"Suits against the state are prohibited by the 11th Amendment," the court continued in a 69-page majority opinion. "All have executive immunity."

Washington area, Ziegler said.

Ziegler has declined to predict if the new Paris talks, to begin Monday, would end the lengthy negotiating process. However, he did say he expected the talks to last for "several days—perhaps longer."

Ziegler said the new talks would be followed by "further consultations with the South Vietnamese and perhaps with the North Vietnamese." And he added the United States "is entering into these talks with a constructive attitude.

"If the other side enters into these negotiations with the same spirit of good will that has characterized these sessions since Oct. 8, we would expect a successful outcome," he said.

Kissinger announced Oct. 26 that a final set of meetings, lasting perhaps three or four days, should wrap up the talks. His announcement came after North Vietnam released details of a tentative nine-point plan for a cease-fire.

Since then, South Vietnam has raised several questions that have appeared to delay final agreement. And North Vietnam said Thursday it will resist any effort to make substantive changes in the original draft settlement.

What About Sex During Pregnancy?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I'm a married man and my wife is pregnant. I would like to know how long can marital relations be going on (she's in her seventh month). She is worrying over my having affairs with other women and is keeping me home when I would like to go out and have some fun talking with other men. I stay home and drink because of this. Is it normal for women to act this way when pregnant?

Dear Reader—Couples' individual living patterns are so variable that even when the wife isn't pregnant it is difficult to answer your question specifically. Some women are confident in their relationship with their husband and are well adjusted and don't make excessive demands on their husbands' time. They know if their husband is away from home it is because of something he has to do or it is important to him.

Other women are less secure, and may be overly demanding on their husbands. These are the women who demand that their husband be home at a specific time on the dot and keep track of all his time and activity whether or not they are pregnant. These are often domineering women who are attempting to control and dominate their husbands and usually try to run the family. Some husbands actually like this, others don't. Each couple has to work out their own interdynamic relationship, and if it isn't worked out satisfactorily they need professional help either in terms of marriage counseling or in some instances psychiatric help. The domineering, over-controlling wife many times does drive her husband to drink. This is part of the dynamics of the alcoholic's wife. She usually needs psychotherapy, but because of her husband's obvious drinking (which she actually precipitates), is able to convince herself that it is her husband's fault and that she is above reproach. The truth is both of them have a problem.

When a woman is pregnant things change and things get more complicated. Many women are very happy and secure in their pregnancy and look forward to the baby and may even have a better disposition during their pregnancy than they do other times. But this isn't always the case. Some women fear that pregnancy makes them unattractive or as you express it, are concerned that their husband will be interested in other women while they are pregnant. This is a real psychological threat to a woman and it's understandable that she might be insecure if this is her reaction to her pregnancy. Such a woman usually needs reassurance by her husband sufficient to convince her of his love. In these circumstances, a man might be well advised, if it is conversation he wants, to invite some of his men friends or married couples to the home and the wife would be wise to encourage this. Or if the family situation permits, you can take your wife out, even if she is in her last month of pregnancy. You can both enjoy the conversation.

As far as marital relations are concerned, most obstetricians feel that this should be avoided during the last month of pregnancy. There is evidence that when the woman reaches a climax that this causes the uterus to start contracting and may precipitate an early labor. If a woman does not reach a climax, then this doesn't occur of course.

Buenos Aires to greet the former populist president who ruled from 1946 to 1955. Thousands tried, forming at least nine marching columns, but they were turned back by some 30,000 troops ringing the airport and dispersed by volleys of tear-gas grenadas.

Peron, who is expected to stay in Argentina about one week, spent his first day in the red-carpeted Presidential Suite of the Ezeiza Hotel, meeting with leaders of other political parties and Peronist union chiefs.

At the political meeting, he discussed the Peronist - organized National Civil Front, formed by Peron's Justicialista party, with nine leaders of smaller parties. If Peron can make the front a solid coalition, it could be the winner in general elections President Alejandro Lanuss has called for next March 11 to return the government to civilian rule.

Peron was ousted by a military coup in 1955 and was forced into exile. He spent the last 12 years in Madrid.

Court Refuses To Rule On Guard Weapons

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The 6th U. S. circuit Court of Appeals has ruled that the training of National Guardsmen and their right to carry loaded weapons is a military and political matter beyond the jurisdiction of the courts.

The ruling came Friday as the court refused to overturn the dismissal of damage suits totaling $11 million brought by parents of three of the four Kent State University students killed during a confrontation with National Guardsmen during a campus disturbance May 4, 1970.

The court said the suits naming former Ohio Gov. James Rhodes, officers of the Ohio National Guard and Kent State President Robert I. White "are, in substance, actions against the state.

"Suits against the state are prohibited by the 11th Amendment," the court continued in a 69-page majority opinion. "All have executive immunity."
